Stone Fort History

The history of Stephen F. Austin State University is steeped in myth, legend and tradition. One myth regarding the Old Stone Fort Museum, featured in the top right corner, warns undergraduates not to enter the museum on campus until after graduation; if they do enter the museum, the myth tells, their dreams of obtaining a degree will not come to fruition. It is a legend that has been proven false time and time again. The Stone Fort yearbook, named after the Stone Fort Memorial Building, also offers readers a chance to step into SFA history.

The Stone Fort yearbook was established before the Stone Fort Museum, built in 1936, that stands on campus today. There were two previous Stone Fort buildings in Nacogdoches, neither of which were actually a fort. The original was a house, built by Antonio Gil Y'Barbo sometime between 1788 and 1791 in downtown Nacogdoches. It served as a trading post, private home, church, jail and saloon. The second, known as The Memorial Building, was built on Old Washington Square near downtown in 1907 and is the true namesake of the yearbook. The Memorial Building acted as a classroom, Y.M.C.A. and meeting place for citizens, including the original yearbook staff.

Parades at SFA

Polar Bears parading around campus and reducing the tuition!

Written by Holley Gaskill. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Last spring, Omicron Delta Kappa's sustainability-focused committee, The Kermit Project, presented the idea for Polar Bears on Parade in the Student Government Association's "Big Idea" scholarship competition. SGA liked the idea, and they have since incorporated the program into their greater "Green is the New Purple" sustainability campaign.

ODK has teamed up with the Residence Hall Association, the Physical Plant and Aramark Dining Service to promote the energy saving program.

The members of The Kermit Project researched facts and figures and developed a list of 10 simple and cost-free steps that students living in the residence halls could take to cut their energy use. The list included incorporating easy habits into the daily life of a resident, like turning off lights when leaving a room and unplugging phone chargers when not in use. This list was provided to students via a number of venues, including posters hung at the front desk of each residence hall, MySFA announcements, t-shirts, and a booth at Lumberjack Ally where members gave out "save-the-ice" popsicles and spread the word about the program.

On National Campus Sustainability Day, Aramark helped host a "Lights-Out" dining experience in the BPSC dining hall, where all the lighting was provided by glow sticks, and an acoustic guitarist provided the night's entertainment. "The goal was to use as little energy as possible and to make it a lot of fun for students to partake in a unique dining experience with a greater message," said Hollie Gaskill, ODK member. Also as part of the program, a "polar bear thermometer" was be posted at the front desk of every residence hall that students could check to see how they were doing on energy consumption. ODK picked up energy readouts from the physical plant and relayed them to desk staff to adjust the thermometer.

"The goal was to use as little energy as possible."

"I think it's great that a group has embarked on a mission to address this issue," said Jeff Ghiringhelli, the Plant Operations Analyst at the university's Physical Plant. "We still have a long way to go and many obstacles to cross along the way, but we are undoubtedly heading in the right direction."

Purple Haze

SFA students show their spirit and school pride during football games.

What started with a T-shirt ten years ago has since become a school wide tradition. Purple Haze Inc. is considerably the most interesting "un-organization" on campus.

Most people consider the spirit group to be rowdy and always full of purple pride at SFA athletic events.

"In the early 2000's, a group of student leaders made Purple Haze t-shirts and sold them at a football game to help show off school spirit," said Alex Ranc, proud Purple Haze member. "They made about 200 shirts and sold out in about an hour," she said. SFA Orientation Programs quickly picked up the idea.

Freshman are introduced to Purple Haze long before they step foot into a classroom, with each receiving a shirt at orientation. "Everyone gets a shirt at orientation, so everyone is essentially a member," said Ranc.

The Traditions Council lists Purple Haze as one of the many traditions within SFA culture. "Purple Haze functions much better as an unofficial organization," said Ranc.

Aside from members sporting their Purple Haze shirts and axe handles when packed into Homer Bryce stadium during every home football game, Purple Haze Inc. also helped create Spirit Fridays in order to boost school pride and support SFA athletics. "This past football season, we promoted Lumberjack day by encouraging everyone to attend the SFA v. NSU game, during which the schools battle for the Chief Caddo trophy, dressed as a lumberjack. The response was really fun," said Ranc. "Everyone was in flannel and suspenders."

"Everyone wore flannel and suspenders."

According to the Traditions Council website, Purple Haze is "a tradition created by a group of student leaders, it is more than a section of students at the football game. Purple Haze is a commitment and dedication to the Lumberjack spirit."

Fresh Fish

Freshman convocation provides a new take on college for one freshman and her friend.

Written By Sydney Jones.

As a freshman, the new collegiate world I was pushed into seemed fast-paced and confusing. I'm from Lufkin, only a 20-minute drive from SFA. Although I only hauled my things 20 minutes away from home to my new dorm, I felt like I was leaving everything behind, everything except my best friend Haylee who also chose to attend SFA. We immediately embraced our new individualism and searched the campus for friends. We each loved our new taste of freedom but didn't quite know what to do with it.

Freshman Convocation gave us a chance to find ourselves a niche in Nacogdoches. During Convocation, Haylee and I, along with a few new friends, joined the sea of purple sitting in the bleachers as thousands of freshmen gathered in the SFA Coliseum. As several scholarships were given away during convocation, we were told that we would begin our college career in the same gymnasium from which we would graduate. There were speeches about SFA traditions and the SFA Way followed by several speakers from the six colleges who spoke about the excellence of Stephen F. Austin State University.

"We began our college career in the same gymnasium from which we would graduate."

After singing the SFA song, which was conveniently written on everyone's backs, my friends and I learned that the Back Lot Bash would follow directly after. We rushed outside to a parking lot filled with banners and booths, inviting us into their canopies for a flyer and a conversation. Haylee and I shuffled quickly from booth to booth, grabbing free pens and filling our complimentary plastic sacks with information on clubs and organizations. Another friend took a different route, making the rounds near the booths that offered food. He later claimed that the BBQ sandwiches were the absolute best.

Together, Haylee and I discovered our niche. She would become a Driving Jack, and I decided to join Big Jacks. At the end of the day, we were satisfied with our decisions to attend SFA. Freshman Convocation, and the Back Lot Bash showed us that college was not only a future investment but also a place to get involved and have fun.

Two rotating purple beacon lights placed atop the Steen Towers are used to alert SFA students and supporters of all sports wins, both at home and away. For many years, the top of the 14-story Garner Tower had been illuminated in purple every time the Lumberjacks prevailed on the field, track or court. But Garner was razed during 2010 to make room for a new four-story freshman residence hall and 1,000-car parking garage.

What's New

Several New Additions to a Traditional Campus.

SFA has experienced a significant amount of growth this year—growth for the better. Starting with the new limestone sign that welcomes all onto campus, these new improvements will not only benefit current students but will also attract future students for years to come.

As campus enrollment figures continue to climb, a number of new facilities have recently been built to help compensate for the increasing student population. These facilities include new parking garages, a freshman residence hall and a new building for the School of Nursing.

The Wilson Drive Parking Garage, located near the intersection of East College Street and Wilson Drive, can hold up to 1,000 vehicles. Opening for the first time in fall 2010, the parking garage helped make many students' commute both less time consuming and less stressful. At the same time, however, some students' parking woes still existed. Caressa Thompson, sophomore, feels that the new parking garage has helped about 25 percent since all of the parking by Halls 14 and 16 have been closed due to the freshman residence hall construction. With that said, however, Thompson still hopes that parking will be more efficient next year.

The new freshman housing facility, built where the 14-story Garner Apartments once stood, will house 400 students for the first time in the fall of 2011. This facility will offer larger rooms and a Freshman Success Center to help ease the first year student into college life.

In addition to the new parking garage and housing facility, the Richard and Lucille DeWitt School of Nursing opened in the spring of 2010. This $13 million facility is 41,000 square feet and features a 9,000-square-foot simulation laboratory equipped with some of the latest technology available for nursing education. With four times more space, the nursing program will now be able to accept more students while still providing the same quality education as before.

Along with the new construction, one of the oldest buildings on campus, the Chemistry Building, received $7.35 million worth of renovations. The Chemistry Building, built in 1938, now features research labs for each chemistry professor, restrooms on each floor and an array of energy efficient additions.

The students of SFA have been highly receptive to the recent improvements seen around campus. Melissa Cotner, junior, said, "I love that SFA is improving our already beautiful campus. Through such construction and renovation, SFA is able to achieve the new campus feel without sacrificing our campus history."

Who doesn't love making a big mess with even bigger fruit? At SFA, it's a tradition. Starting decades ago, SFA's annual Watermelon Bash is one of the campus' longest-standing traditions. Organized by the Student Government Association and usually held in late July or early August, the bash serves as a well-deserved relief and refreshing snack to those Lumberjacks who call SFA home during the summer break. Both students and faculty join in the festivities each year before the start of the fall semester. The bash began shortly after the school was founded, when faculty wanted to find a way to thank students who gave up their summers to stay on campus.

Michael Preston, director of student affairs programs and SGA adviser, looks forward to the bash each year. "It's the oldest tradition we have. SGA has been running it continuously since the 1930s," Preston said. "It brings some life to the somewhat uneventful days right before school starts."

Sarah Feye, SGA vice president, loves planning the Watermelon Bash and participating each summer. "The bash is really laid back and lots of fun. It's our creative way of giving back to the students," she said. Feye, along with Student Body President Andy Teel, spent time coordinating the 2010 Watermelon Bash. "We scheduled the Watermelon Bash for the last day of the Board of Regents meeting for the summer session and gave out personal invitations to deans, regents and our administration," Teel said, "Students aren't the only ones enjoying the mess."

SFA Tailgate

With the coming of the fall semester at SFA, students and faculty anticipate the beginning of the traditional college football season. One tradition tends to create another, and along with football comes tailgating at the ever popular Lumberjack Alley.

Lumberjack Alley is organized by the Alumni Association and takes place the morning of every Lumberjack home game in the commuter parking lot by Homer Bryce Stadium. This tailgate event is open to the entire student body and community.

Jeremy Stolfa is the coordinator of operations for SFA athletics and helps organize Lumberjack Alley. "Lumberjack Alley is a tailgate area for the fans that enhances the SFA football atmosphere," Stolfa said.

Tipton Ford is the main sponsor of Lumberjack Alley, so much so that the formal name for the event is Lumberjack Alley Tipton Ford Tailgate, Stolfa said. Other vendors who support Lumberjack Alley include Sonic, U.S. Smokeless Tobacco and R&K Distributors.

"Lumberjack Alley enhances the SFA football atmosphere."

Lumberjack Alley covers almost the entire parking area with people grilling, partying, eating, and socializing. Music, barbecue and team spirit fill the air as everyone gets ready to cheer on the Lumberjacks.

Anyone can get in on the action. Local Nacogdoches businesses set up and distribute free food and SFA football souvenirs.

When game time gets a little closer, the SFA cheerleaders and marching band make a visit to the tailgating festivities and perform a mini pep rally for the fans by playing the SFA fight song and other classics such as "Wabash Cannonball."

The Court

After a week of voting and campaigning, the tallies came in and the winners were announced.

SAA was definitely a force to be reckoned with, dominating the Homecoming Court ticket this time around and winning an overwhelming majority of the seats. Throughout the week, there were cupcakes and candies, signs and music and in the end, there were only 10 winners.

SAA seniors Johnnie Beavers and Tessa Gerall took the throne as King and Queen. Meanwhile, RHA seniors Joseph Houston and Virginia Hester took home the crowns for Senior Duke and Duchess. Raul Oavila and Katy Supan, also SAA members, won Junior Duke and Duchess. Sophomore SAA members Alexa Saffle and Benn May were elected Sophomore Duke and Duchess; Roland Solomon and Kelsey Preston, SAA members as well, took the seats for Freshman Duke and Duchess.

> I'm proud to represent the organization that I love and dedicate most of my time to."

While SAA had the majority of spots, they were met equally with spirit and enthusiasm from the Residence Hall Association (RHA).

Homecoming

More than just the game, Homecoming is a week long series of events.

Written by Wendi Kunkel. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Homecoming is a weekend full of SFA traditions including the Sylvans Forestry Lumberjack Day event, the Lumberjack Bash, Torchlight Parade, Bonfire and Pep Rally, a parade through downtown Nacogdoches, Lumberjack Alley and the Alumni Association Duck Dash followed by the Homecoming football game. Even before Homecoming weekend, campus offices and student organizations host and participate in events to encourage students to have a part in Homecoming. Opportunities for involvement include the organization display boards that are lined up along North Street, a canned food drive and blood drive as well as the "Live United" chain link sale to raise money for United Way of Nacogdoches and encouragement for the football team.

"A weekend full of SFA traditions."

The bonfire, which is built throughout the week by members of Alpha Phi Omega and lit after the Torchlight Parade on Friday night, is an attraction for students and alumni alike. SAA raises awareness of the bonfire throughout the week by allowing students to trade in shirts from other universities, referred to as burn shirts, for SFA Homecoming shirts.

A new event hosted by Campus Recreation, the Lumberjack Fun Run, kicked off Saturday morning at the SFA Intramural Fields. The three-mile course followed the new bike trails and hiking area located next to campus, on the other side of University Drive, as well as the Mize Azalea Garden. Proceeds from the fun run benefitted the Dr. Raymond Lee Worsham Scholarship Fund.

The annual Homecoming parade inundated downtown Nacogdoches with floats, fans and fun. Students decorated their floats in many different ways to represent the Hollywood theme for Homecoming this year, including the float pictured below that portrays a movie scene from the movie "Jurassic Park." Shortly after, students and alumni gathered at Lumberjack Alley to get ready for the football game against Texas State. Lumberjack Alley was filled with tents from student organizations and Nacogdoches businesses. Some of the University-sponsored events at the tailgate were the Alumni Association Duck Dash and the Alumni Picnic.

The biggest event on the list came Saturday afternoon at game time. It seemed as though all of Nacogdoches came out to show the boys some support against the Texas State Bobcats. The first half was intense, with the Lumberjacks far ahead in the lead. After halftime, they continued their lead right up until the end of the third quarter. Unfortunately, the Bobcats came back with a vengeance at the end of the fourth quarter to win the game 27-24. Although the Homecoming game was not a Lumberjack victory, spirit did not diminish as students and alumni continued celebrations throughout the rest of the weekend.

Student organization raises cultural awareness on campus through unique venue

The Lumberjack Cultural Association (LCA), an organization created to increase community and global cultural awareness of the student body, co-sponsored this year's Tunnel of Oppression, with the SFA Office of Multicultural Affairs.

The event is loosely based on the Museum of Tolerance in Los Angeles, Calif. Guests are ushered into the BPSC movie theatre to watch a film that features topics such as date rape, Haiti relief, abortion, white supremacy, common stereotypes and terrorism. From there, guests are led by tour guides, also called runners, into separate rooms where the topics that were shown on film are presented individually.

"Hate can be anywhere."

According to Eric Goode, LCA member and Houston senior, "The goal is to spotlight different types of oppression and injustice that still happen in today's world."

LCA members prepare for the Tunnel of Oppression throughout the year, reserving rooms, selecting actors and writing scripts. Members also provide information from local businesses related to featured topics, which are found in the Debriefing Room, the last room guests visit during the event, along with support from on-site counselors.

"When I work on the tunnel, I can sense the oppression that the portrayed individuals experienced. The images stick with you and remind me that hate can be anywhere," Goode said. "We want to tell the story of what people went through because sometimes, they can't tell it themselves," said Goode.

Although only three years old, the Campus Recreation department offers a variety of opportunities for students, faculty and alumni of SFA. In those three short years, the beautiful exercise facility has become a staple of the Stephen F. Austin campus.

The Rec is most famous for its 34-foot rock wall in the center of the facility and the relaxing lazy river located in the heated outdoor pool with the SFA logo tiled proudly at the bottom.

Within 12,000 combined square feet of fitness space, there is various cardio equipment —most of which is equipped with personal TVs and radios, along with free weights and machines.

"There is something for everyone."

Program areas within the department include: Intramural Sports and Sport Clubs, Fitness and Wellness, Outdoor Pursuits and Promotions.

There is something for everyone in Intramural Sports, ranging from major team sports like flag football and basketball to horseshoe singles and cornhole doubles. Winners receive bragging rights and an "Intramural Champion" t-shirt.

The Rec now administers 19 active sport clubs including: Bass, Beep Ball, Cycling, Inline Hockey, Judo, Men's Basketball, Men's Soccer, Outdoor Adventure, Racquet Ball, Rodeo, Rugby, Tennis, Ultimate Frisbee, Water Sports, Women's Soccer, Women's Volleyball, Men's Lacrosse, Skateboarding and the Student Officials Association. The teams compete against other collegiate teams as well as non-university sponsored teams.

Fitness and Wellness makes an assortment of group exercise classes possible. Common classes found at the Rec include Yoga, Boot Camp, Trim and Tone, Zumba, Abs for Lunch and Cycling. This program area also provides personal training, nutrition assessments, counseling and massage therapy. Prices for these services are about half of what is charged at a typical salon or gym.

Outdoor Pursuits manages the rock wall and puts on an array of clinics and trips. Subject matters for the trips and clinics include camping, rock climbing, mountain biking, horseback riding, slack lining, canoeing and outdoor survival.

In Fall 2010 Campus Rec Promotions launched its first integrated marketing campaign known as "Empower Yourself." In an effort to stay environmentally friendly and technologically savvy, this was also the first year that the program guide became available online only. "Empower Yourself" can be found outlined on the online guide.

The idea is that each program area at the Rec offers opportunity to enhance a student's life through seven dimensions—Empower Yourself physically through Fitness and Wellness; emotionally through Aquatics; intellectually through Safety; socially through Intramurals and Sport Clubs; environmentally through Outdoor Pursuits; spiritually through Special Events, and financially by becoming a staff member.

With a constant flow of events and information that need to be communicated, the Rec is consistently updating and maintaining its use of social media.

Besides the official Campus Recreation Web site, the Rec currently operates a Facebook fan page and group, Twitter, YouTube site and blog. Information available on these sites can include anything from changes in hours to exercise tips, to event promotion and recap.

True Jacks

Chronister and Pawelek named SFA mascots for Fall 2010 - Spring 2011 Semesters.

Written By Ashley Scott. Photographed By Thomas Motyka.

In 1923, at an assembly made up of students and staff members, English professor T.E. Ferguson submitted the idea of "The Lumberjack" as the SFA mascot. The vote backing Ferguson's suggestion was unanimous throughout the assembly, beating the other suggestion for The Pinecones. Since that day, SFA has been the home of the Lumberjacks, and the Lumberjack mascot has been the face of the University.

Al Pawelek and Stephanie Chronister are the new Lumberjack and Ladyjack mascots for the Fall 2010 Semester and Spring 2011 Semesters.

Pawelek, an accounting major, believes that being the SFA Lumberjack mascot will help him in the future. "It shows that I can make decisions under pressure," he said.

"The Lumberjack mascot is the face of the University."

Their jobs as mascots seem stressful and time consuming, but both Paewlek and Chronister agree that the most intimidating aspect of being the SFA mascot is the lack of coverage from a costume. Even though it is the Ladyjack and Lumberjack that are the mascots, it is Pawelek and Chronister's faces that the fans associate with SFA.

"I was the mascot in high school, and no one really knew who I was," said Chronister, freshman biology major. "Here at SFA, there is so much more school spirit. People know who I am, but I don't know them."

Pawelek hopes that he can leave a positive impression on SFA students and fans. "I am still learning the ropes, but I want to make a good statement," he said. "I hope that I can."

Chronister was selected to be the Ladyjack as a freshman. "Sometimes, I feel overwhelmed because college is intense academically, but being the Ladyjack means it is also more intense spirit-wise."

Pawelek and Chronister are enjoying some of the perks that come with their new jobs as mascots. "My favorite part is not only getting to be the crazy, wild and spirited person I already am, but also when Al has to do push ups," said Chronister, popping up from a relaxed position and smiling at Al. "My favorite part is when I get free stuff," Pawelek said.

OPPOSITE When the Lumberjack football team makes a touchdown, Pawelek drops on the turf and does the same number of push-ups as the cumulative SFA score while Chronister and the cheerleaders count out the push-ups for the crowd.

Sarah Feye, SGA and student body vice president, talks about The SFA Way with Brittane Hamilton after giving her a free SFA Way T-shirt. "In order to get a shirt or pin, student's would have to recite the five root principles by memory. It was amazing to see how many people knew them and it was validation that the SFA Way has truly caught on" said Feye. Several students stopped by the table to sign a pledge card that confirmed their belief on The SFA Way. In return, students received T-shirts, an SFA Way pin and the chance to win a ticket to the Battle of the Piney Woods.

The Student Government Association introduced The SFA Way concept to the student community through a booth on the BPSC Plaza which allowed students to receive raffle tickets for a single pass to the Battle of the Piney Woods in exchange for their promise to uphold The SFA Way.

"The five main principals of SFA Way are respect, caring, responsibility, unity and integrity," explained SGA Junior Senator Ryan Dietrich, who was an active participant at the booth. "It's a way for students to reaffirm their morals and actions." These values are reinforced not only by faculty but by other staff members as well.

Dr. Adam Peck, dean of student affairs, said The SFA Way can make a difference in students' lives. "We knew that if a student would strive for personal excellence in everything they do, they wouldn't violate their personal values and they wouldn't violate our values. They couldn't help but be successful. That ultimately is what The SFA Way was all about."

Peck said The SFA Way originated not from SFA faculty but rather from the student body. "We used the work we did in Reflection Week last year, where we asked students what they thought the values of SFA were, to design the five root principals." According to Peck, the strongest value was unity. "They way we structured unity into The SFA Way was that no matter what brings you here, you are a Lumberjack. All of us have that in common. We are all Lumberjacks, and we all have a stake in helping each other succeed."

"No matter what brings you here, you are a Lumberjack."

After reviewing the responses from Spring 2010's Reflection Week, both the faculty and SGA decided to try their hands in creating an honor code to help the student body succeed. "Student government brought me their draft of the honor code, and it was the first thing to have the words "striving for personal excellence in everything we do." That line was written by Aaron Good of SGA. It was non- judgmental, aspirational, and it was about what we want to become."

Peck explained what he believes is another way to look at The SFA Way. "The 'way' in The SFA Way refers to a couple of different things. It's the way that we do things, but it's also a path, a way to achieve what you want to achieve. If you follow The SFA Way, it will lead you to success."

Movie Night

One student's take on finding entertainment on campus grounds.

Written by Sydney Jones. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

At Freshman Orientation, my friend Robert and I discovered that Nacogdoches not only has theatrical performances at the Turner Auditorium, but it also has a cinematic theatre conveniently located on campus. We had heard good reviews concerning the theatre and the ability to see movies within walking distance from our dorms was exciting.

"Ticket prices that fit well within our college budgets."

The Student Activities Association, a group that provides organized activities for students, sponsors the weekly movies. After seeing movie posters and other advertisements, we were immediately interested in the ticket prices that fit well within our college budgets, and we soon realized that the rest of the student body felt the same way. Although shows do not typically sell out, the theatre is usually bustling with people. Even after arriving early, we were met by a long line of moviegoers.

For only $1, we can see a recent movie, fresh out of the theatre but not yet on DVD. Faculty and staff can attend movies for $2, and our friends from the general public can see the films with us for $3. Along with our movie, we could buy popcorn, a drink or a full-sized candy for 75¢ each or a combo for $2.

Robert and I attended the 7 o'clock showing of "Toy Story 3" and laughed and cried our way through a dramatic ending to a successful series. We got in line on the second floor of the student center and bought our tickets after flashing our student I.D. cards. For $1.75, I purchased a ticket and a bag of popcorn, and Robert bought chocolate covered raisins, a fountain drink and his ticket for $2.50.

Two movies are shown per weekend, with an early viewing at 7 p.m. followed by the second show at 9 p.m on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

A Jack's Life

Three average students living three very different lives.

The most noticeable aspect of diversity at SFA can be seen in the array of cultures and ethnicities on campus. But if you look closer, you can see diversity in the day-to-day activities of each student.

With more than 100 student organizations on campus, many students find that their extracurricular activities help define them. Involvement in student organizations, sports teams or honor societies usually requires a lot of hard work and dedication but proves to be a rewarding experience that results in lasting friendships and memories. Mirannda Lindberg, Lamar Jefferson and Megan Chinworth are three examples of students who have done just that. Mirannda Lindberg, a junior, is double majoring in dance and music. She wakes up at 8:30 in the morning for a full day of classes and dance practices. "I usually spend a couple minutes in bed, going through a checklist of everything that needs to be done for the day," Lindberg says. Following this, she attends class from 10 a.m. to 2:15 p.m., going to Wind Ensemble, dance class and practice in between. Afterwards, she goes to Color Guard practice until 5:30 p.m.

Lindberg is also a community assistant for Griffith Hall, sergeant at arms for Phi Rho Psi, the color guard service sorority, and captain for Perpetual Motion, the competitive color guard organization. Lamar Jefferson is a junior theatre major. "I typically start my day by putting my pants on one leg at a time like everybody else," Jefferson says. Since his schedule is so full, Jefferson has perfected the art of multi-tasking. He studies lines or reads a play for class while walking to school from the Benita Creek Apartments. Depending on the day, Jefferson then proceeds to class for the rest of the morning or the afternoon. At 5 o'clock in the evening, Jefferson heads to rehearsals for two productions, musical comedy How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying and musical review of A Nacogdoches Pioneer Christmas. With three rehearsals a day, Jefferson usually doesn't make it home until 1 o'clock in the morning, just to have it start again after a few hours of sleep. "I choose this lifestyle because it's who I want to be," Jefferson says.

"I start my day by putting my pants on one leg at a time, like everybody else."

Megan Chinworth, a sophomore, is double majoring in psychology and French. Her typical day begins with class at 9 in the morning. Following this, Chinworth heads to the student center for a meal. "A nutritious and delicious breakfast helps me get through the rest of my classes for the day," Chinworth says. Between going to class and studying, Chinworth manages to take care of her obligations as a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. On Monday evenings, Chinworth joins other ZTA members for a chapter dinner before the organization's weekly meetings, at which they discuss upcoming and past events for the sorority as well as listen to occasional featured visitors. Once she finishes up at the Zeta house, Chinworth heads back home to Steen to get a little more studying in before finally crashing.

While these students represent just a fragment of the student body, they show just how varied an SFA student's life can be. In reality, there is no typical day for a student since we all follow our own paths. Through these separate paths, however, a similarity arises as we not only better ourselves through our involvement but also better SFA as a whole.

OPPOSITE Chinworth often studies in her room. Her sorority letters hang on her wall along with photos of friends.

Nacogdoches also offers several year-round events and festivals that celebrate its rich history. There is the Azalea Trail in March, the Multicultural Festival in May, the Texas Blueberry Festival in June, Scare on the Square in October and the Downtown Art Walk in November. The Nine Flags Festival occurs in December and features a Lighted Christmas Parade.

Nacogdoches has long been known as the oldest town in Texas and, as such, there are several historical landmarks open to the public. Durst-Taylor Historic House and Gardens is an 1830s wood-frame house interpreted to the 1840 to 1860 time period when the Blackburn family lived there. The house is the second oldest structure still standing on its original site in Nacogdoches. Millard's Crossing is a charming reconstructed historic village that enables visitors to imagine East Texas as it was in the 19th century. The Fire Museum was built in 1996 in the former fire department shop on South Fredonia Street at the back of the

One of the most unique aspects of Nacogdoches is the large number of locally owned specialty and antique stores you'll find in the downtown area. There are countless family-owned shops and restaurants, places that still do business the old-fashioned way. Stop into a 100-year-old hardware store that still sells nails by the pound; visit the only professional stained glass studio in East Texas or an old-style barbershop like your dad used to visit.

Spend a night on the town in Nacogdoches at one of the locally owned bars or take to the roller rink, miniature golf course or the bowling alley for a change of scenery.

There is, of course, the Carmike 6 movie theatre, but there are also several options when it comes to both movie live theatre. The SFA Movie Theatre in The Baker Pattillo Student Center is open to the public and features inexpensive movies and value-priced concessions. Since 1971, the Lamp-Lite Playhouse performers have delivered first-rate productions for audiences in Nacogdoches. SFA Arts features world-class touring performances, from operas to children's plays, year-round. There are also several music venues to visit. Banita Creek Hall offers Texas country at its finest every Thursday through Saturday, and the Fredonia Hotel on the old brick streets of downtown offers shows featuring popular bands, comedians and poets. Of course, you can always find a sporting event going on at Stephen F. Austin almost any day of the week.

Central Fire Station. The museum contains Nacogdoches' first fire engine and a number of pictures and other fire department memorabilia. The campus of Stephen F. Austin State University is home to a fort that never served as a fort. The original Stone Fort, built in downtown Nacogdoches, was a trading post, private home, church, jail and saloon. Two more "Stone Forts" followed its construction, the Memorial Building in 1907 and the Stone Fort Museum on SFA campus in 1936. Nicholas Adolphus Sterne built the Sterne-Hoya House in 1830. It is the oldest structure still standing on its original site in Nacogdoches. Mrs. Eva Catherine Sterne sold the house to Joseph Von der Hoya in 1869. Only two families owned the home before it was gifted to the city in 1958. The collection includes Hoya objects from the Victorian Age and objects from the Empire period when the Sternes' owned the home. A complete list of the city's historic attractions is available from the Nacogdoches Convention and Visitors Center.

The Library

To the untrained eye, one would assume libraries only offer shelves and shelves and shelves of books, suitable for the average nerd. But in actuality, libraries offer more than just books. To bring exposure to what the library offers, the Texas Library Association created the idea of "Library Snapshot Day" to bring recognition to all Texas libraries—public, academic and school. On this special day, cameras were placed in strategic places for students to use to capture significant photographs. College students are usually camera-ready, so having a "snapshot" day in the library is appropriate.

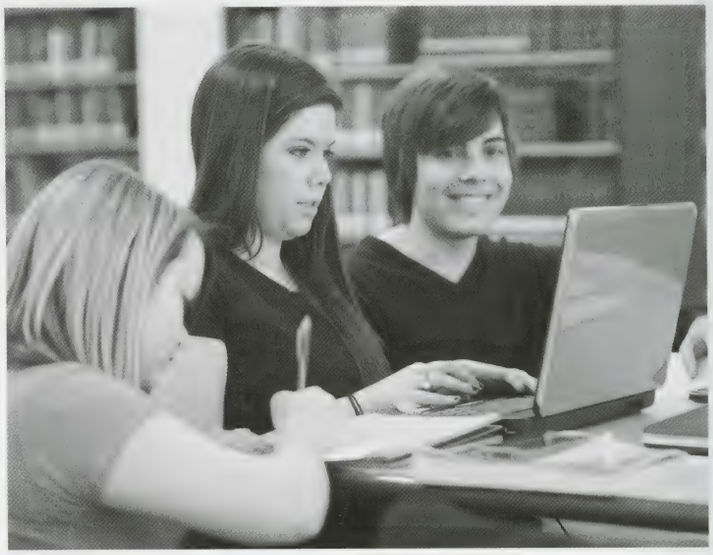
"Library Snapshot Day brings recognition to all Texas libraries."

Nationally, this is the second year this celebration has been held, but for SFA's Ralph W. Steen Library, this is the first year. The Texas Library Association, which hosts a conference yearly for all librarians in Texas, essentially sets the standards for all Texas librarians. Marthea Turnage, librarian, believes that libraries cross several socio-economic paths for everyone. "They fulfill different needs such as reading, personal fulfillment and studying," Turnage said.

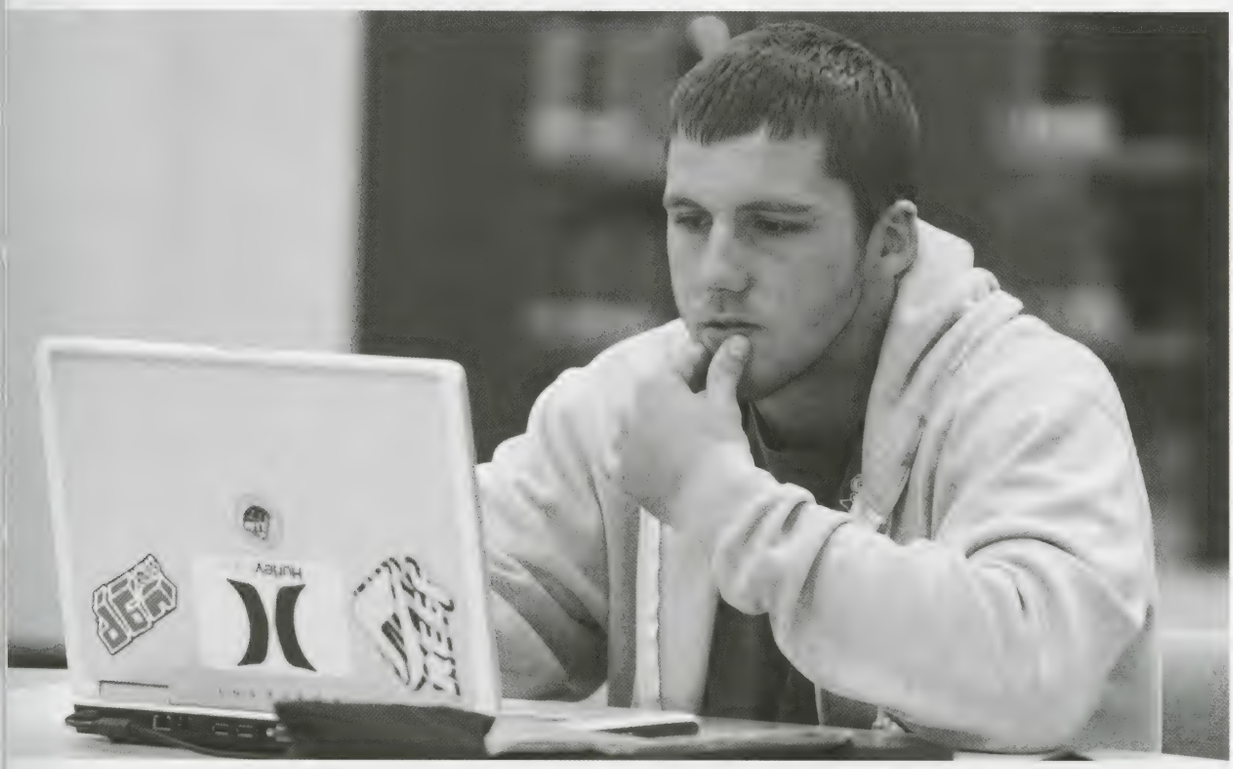
In addition to the circulation desk, Steen Library offers services that range from soundproof rooms for music majors to the rising popularity of AARC tutoring. For history majors, the archives offer the East Texas Research Center where letters written by history greats such as Davy Crockett and Stephen F. Austin can be found. The library Web site also offers assistance for distance education learners. Faculty find the Teaching Excellence Center helpful for devising novel ways to garner students' interest in learning. There is also designated software in The Link computer lab for students to utilize for their classes.

The "hot spot" locations that students frequent daily include the AARC, Einstein's Bagels and the adjacent coffee shop, and the lobby area where students quickly check their e-mail between classes. The fourth floor, the designated "quiet area," also contains the Children's Collection featuring picture books and literacy up to the 12th grade. Tina Oswald, research librarian, said, " Mainly, education majors and homeschoolers take advantage of this section."

When asked about any odd occurrences in the library, Turnage recalled one particular incident where annoyed students unplugged a squeaky photocopier from the photocopy center and moved it to the stairwell. Another astonishing, yet humorous incident is one where students built a fort of books, which wasn't humorous for the librarians to reshelve the following day. "Students are usually tense around final exam time," Turnage added.



ABOVE Chelsae Webb, Andrea Crockett and Taylor Hinchliffe work on a group project in the Ralph W. Steen Library.



ABOVE Ralph W. Steen Library is not only a place for students to study. Many students hang out outside the library or seek free tutoring inside the AARC. There is also a cafe, Einstein's Bagels, where students can grad a quick bite to eat and a cup of coffee on their way to class.

The Big Dip

Receiving a class ring is a memorable event for any student. At Stephen F. Austin State University, the official class ring is the Mentor Ring. To be eligible to receive a Mentor Ring, students must have 60 credit hours completed. Once a student qualifies for the privilege, the university extends an invitation to the student to purchase a ring and attend the Big Dip ceremony.

If you choose to purchase a Mentor Ring, you have the opportunity to participate in the Big Dip ceremony in May or December, depending upon the semester of qualification. The ceremony itself is held in the student center, typically at noon. There are introductions and speeches from faculty and alumni. After, students are called, one by one, to approach the stage and dip their right hand into a bowl of purple dye, temporarily dying their hand. The students are then presented with their ring and shake hands with the president of the university, Dr. Baker Pattillo.

More than just a piece of jewelry, the mentor program gives students the opportunity to work with a mentor from their own field of study. This way, mentors are more familiar with what the student needs to graduate and what will be expected of students after graduation. These mentors help ensure that during their final months at SFA, students are on the right track to graduation and beyond.

Robert Kidder, kinesiology senior, explains that the SFA letters on the ring face the wearer before graduation and then the ring is flipped so the letters face the world after graduation.

"More than just a piece of jewelry."

As one of the newest traditions on campus, the Mentor Ring program will allow Lumberjacks to identify one another long after they graduate and leave Nacogdoches.

To students still attending the school, the ring is a constant reminder of what they hope to accomplish in the future. To alumni, the Mentor Ring reminds them of where they started and all the experiences they had while attending SFA. And to all who wear the ring, it represents the spirit and pride they have to be a Lumberjack and the purple that runs in their blood.

Blood Drive

Written by Gina Butler. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Since Oct. 8, 2007, Campus Recreation has partnered with The Blood Center of East Texas for a total of 19 blood drives. They have thus far recorded 485 donations, saving up to 1,455 lives.

More than 80 SFA students, faculty and staff participated in the blood drive sponsored by Campus Recreation on Feb. 1-2, 2011. With each donation potentially saving up to three lives, this single drive yielded enough blood to help more than 240 individuals.

Among those who donated was Fireal Clinton, a senior who had never donated before. "In my anatomy and physiology class, I learned about the importance of giving blood. This is what finally convinced me to take the next step," Clinton said.

Another student to donate was April Gray, a sophomore. "For me, personally, I started donating after my uncle needed a blood transfusion while overseas. This really impacted me; it hit close to home. Since then, I've been committed for life," Gray said.

Each donation potentially saves three lives.

For other students, like Keishlan Rodney, sophomore, the decision to donate came while in high school. "I began donating in high school as a way to further help my community," Rodney said. "It upsets me when people write off donating simply because they fear needles. In my opinion, that's rather selfish since just one hour of your time can potentially make a huge impact on one or more people's lives."

Pink Out

Promoting cancer awareness and education throughout Nacogdoches.

Throughout the Zeta Tau Alpha-sponsored "Pink Out Month," sorority members raised approximately $5,000 for the ZTA Foundation, which teams up with other organizations, like Yoplait and the NFL, to promote breast cancer awareness and education on a national scale. According to Erika Steindorf, Dallas junior and ZTA member, the foundation works with the NFL to dress football players in pink gear during Breast Cancer Awareness Month, much like the local ZTA chapter worked with SFA athletics to promote cancer awareness and education during the third annual "Pink Out" football game.

During the televised game, SFA Football players sported breast cancer ribbon stickers on their helmets, the SFA athletics staff wore pink ribbons on their shirts and approximately 1,700 Pink Out shirts were sold to students, who wore the shirts to the Pink Out football game and around campus throughout the month. "We made a special tunnel for the football team to run through before the game and decorated the stadium with pink paper ribbons," Steindorf said. Students wrote messages on the ribbons, dedicating them to the cancer survivors and victims in their own lives.

"Survivors attended the football game and participated in the coin toss and the SFA Pom Squad wore pink shirts," Steindorf said. "There was pink everywhere, and because the game was televised, we were able to reach out to more than just the SFA community."

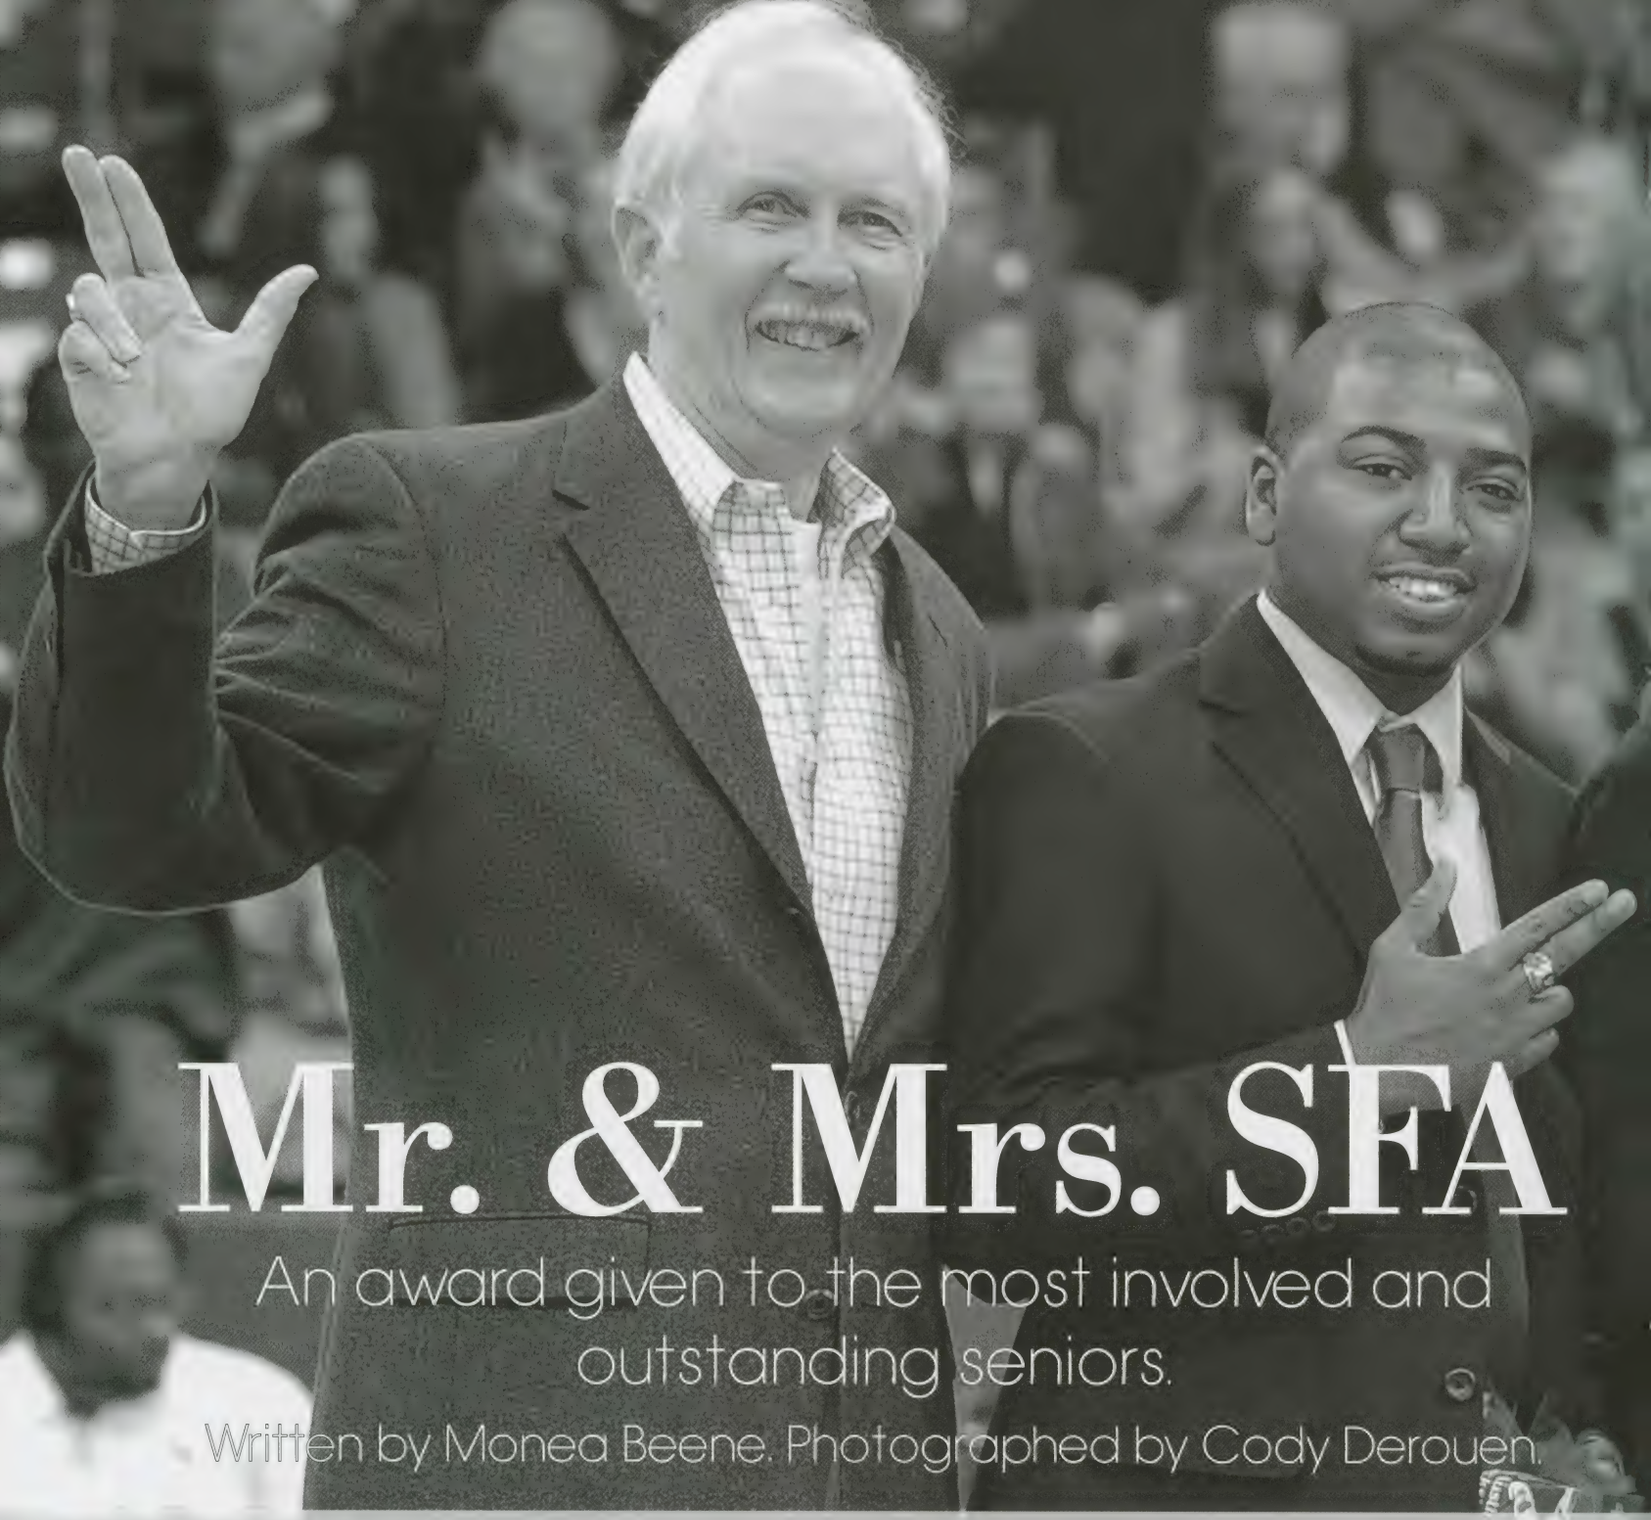
Other students found ways to promote breast cancer awareness as well. During Lumberjack Alley, before the "Pink Out" football game, Pi Kappa Phi members painted themselves pink and encouraged others to get painted pink as well.

"Pi Kappa Phi wanted to make a big showing at the 'Pink Out' game," said Sam Alford, Baytown senior and Pi Kappa Phi chaplin, "because we believe in supporting both the football team and other organizations on campus." According to Alford, other students that painted themselves pink, like Justin Barrington, Llano senior and Pi Kappa Phi president, wanted to represent family members of their own who were fighting breast cancer.

ZTA members also participated in other activities throughout the month. They worked with Nacogdoches Medical Center staff to produce a breast cancer awareness video. ZTA also assisted the Medical Center with its "Simply Pink" fashion show at the Piney Woods Country Club in Nacogdoches and worked with the SFA Football team to organized a luncheon at Nacogdoches Memorial Hospital to honor breast cancer survivors and their support group. In addition, ZTA hosted "Think Pink Night" at which they passed out yogurt and breast cancer awareness facts. For every yogurt lid that was returned, a donation of 10¢ went to the Susan G. Komen Foundation for the Cure.



Mr. & Mrs. SFA

An award given to the most involved and outstanding seniors.

The Mr. SFA and Miss SFA awards, permanently endowed through the SFA Alumni Association, were conferred to two outstanding students by a committee of alumni, faculty, staff and students. While the Mr. SFA award was established in memory of Stan McKewen, a 1934 SFA graduate, the Miss SFA award was later established in honor of Arnodean Covin, a 1943 and 1972 graduate of SFA. The two students awarded were selected based on scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and co-curricular activities, citizenship and service as well as loyalty to the university.

This year, the Mr. SFA title was awarded to Jamal Smith. Jamal is a senior at the university and a Business major. A 2007 graduate of North Mesquite High School, he has been honored with the bronze, silver and gold Presidential Volunteer Service Awards for his service to SFA and the community. He was awarded the National Orientation Directors' Association Student Leadership Award in 2010 for his service as an Orientation leader and supervisor at SFA. Jamal has been a student instructor for SFA 101 and a member of the Order of Omega. His community service work includes service in the Theta Chi fraternity. Jamal organized and implemented the first Theta Chi Give Back Week, served as the community service chairman and worked as a new member educator for the fraternity. As a member of the SFA Student Activities Association, Jamal volunteers his time to coordinate and assist with many campus events. He is a volunteer with Driving Jacks, and served as a Jack Camp counselor for two years.

The Miss SFA 2011 title was awarded to Jessica Patterson. Patterson is a senior majoring in Communication Studies. A 2007 graduate of Texas City High School, she has held many leadership positions while at SFA including her service as president of the Zeta Tau Alpha fraternity. In 2008, she was voted the Zeta Tau Alpha Miss SFA for her involvement on campus. Patterson also assisted with the coordination of the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure in Houston and co-produced an awareness video with the Nacogdoches Medical Center to debut their "Simply Pink" fashion show. She was awarded a Texas City Rotary Club Scholarship for leadership and academic excellence and was inducted into the Order of Omega by demonstrating outstanding leadership and academics as a member of the Greek community. Patterson was a student instructor for SFA 101 and served as an Orientation supervisor and leader. She was employed by the Academic Assistance Resource Center as a supplementary instruction leader. Her volunteer work has included service with Driving Jacks, the Nacogdoches Boys and Girls Club, Adopt a Highway clean up and Relay for Life.

On Saturday, Dec. 18, at William R. Johnson Coliseum, the SFA commencement ceremony was held at 9:30 a.m. On this day, more than 900 degrees were awarded, including 769 bachelor's degrees, 143 master's degrees and one doctorate of forestry. Fifty-nine students graduated cum laude, along with 48 magna cum laude and 35 summa cum laude graduates. Dr. Donald Gregory, professor emeritus of political science, was the speaker. This is a large number for a fall graduation; however, it is not the largest graduation SFA has seen. The largest fall graduation on record is December of '92 with a total of 890 graduates.

What an Honor

SFA clinches Commissioner's Cup even before the points have been tallied.

Submitted by SFA Athletics.

Photographed by Hardy Meredith, SFA Public Affairs.

Not only has SFA clinched its first-ever Commissioner's Cup, but it has also secured enough points to take the Southland Conference Men's and Women's All-Sports Awards to make it just the second institution in the Cup's history to sweep all three awards. The only other to do so was UT-Arlington in the 1997-98 season, the first year the Cup was awarded.

"This award is a credit to our coaches, staff and, most importantly, our student-athletes for being able to balance not only athletics, but their academic responsibilities as well," SFA Director of Athletics Robert Hill said. "They have been able to concentrate on doing two things that we strive to do at SFA—win championships and graduate our student-athletes."

In a banner year for SFA Athletics, the Lumberjacks and Ladyjacks combined to win five league titles including football, women's basketball, softball and women's indoor and outdoor track and field. The five titles are the most for SFA since the 2005 campaign.

SFA earned a total of 158 points at the end of the season, surpassing the highest point total for any school under the current scoring system and had the largest margin of victory in the award's history. Four of SFA's five titles have come on the women's side in 2009-10, helping the Ladyjacks take the Women's All-Sports crown for just the second time.

The Ladyjack outdoor track and field team claimed its second consecutive title, setting a new women's meet record with 201.5 total points to run away with the championship. That came on the heels of the Ladyjack softball team's first-ever conference, as well as the indoor track and field title and Ladyjack basketball's 15th conference title earlier in the season.

The men's season was highlighted by the re-emergence of the Lumberjack football team as J.C. Harper led SFA to its third Southland Conference title and the second round of the FCS Playoffs. The Lumberjack basketball team enjoyed another successful year as well, finishing second in the SLC and just missing a three-peat while advancing to the finals of the Southland Conference Tournament.

"We are all very appreciative of the support of the university administration, especially Dr. Baker Pattillo, as without his support none of this would have been possible," Hill said.

Jacks Win, 31-28

A record 24,685 people were in attendance for the Battle of the Piney Woods at Reliant Stadium.

Written by Stephanie Slabaugh.

"Axe 'em Jacks!" yelled head coach J.C. Harper as he stood in the middle of Reliant Field holding the legendary Battle of the Piney Woods trophy after Saturday's game. His team surrounded him, now able to celebrate a 31-28 win over Sam Houston State University. The battle was indeed a battle, but in the end the first win of the three-year contract at Reliant Stadium with an attendance of 24,685, belongs to those who bleed purple. Senior quarterback Jeremy Moses maintained his composure when the defense pressured him and did not hesitate to throw long passes to receivers with single man coverage. "They got up in our face, so we threw the ball deep," Moses said.

SFA gained 418 passing yards as opposed to SHSU's 201. Completing 30 passes for 418 yards, Moses set the Southland Conference all-time total offense record. Moses' lack of hesitation comes from confidence in the Lumberjack defense.

"I know even if I throw a bad pass, our defense is gonna go out there and get the ball back," Moses said. Freshman Caleb Nelson and junior Derrick Choice finished with 13 tackles. Senior Jabarra Williams was right behind them with 10 tackles, and junior David Cato had eight. Freshman Kris Lott led SFA with eight receptions for 99 yards and a touchdown, while Sophomore Gralyn Crawford added seven catches for 88 yards. Sophomore Cordell Roberson had five receptions for 162 yards and two touchdowns.

"This may be the greatest day of my life," said a grinning Moses. "I am a huge Texans fan, so to be able to play on this field was amazing."

Until the battle continues next year, Reliant Stadium belongs to the Lumberjacks.

Record Setter

Quarterback Jeremy Moses breaks Southland Conference records, makes history.

Written by Stephanie Slabaugh. Photographed by Cody Derouen.

Raised in Baytown, Jeremy Moses isn't your average quarterback. After a serious injury in the first game of his high school senior year, Moses lost contact with all those "big schools" that wanted him. When it came time for a decision to be made about where he would attend college, Moses was tossed between Blinn and Navarro. Lucky for SFA, head coach J.C. Harper called, and Moses stepped onto the field at Homer Bryce Stadium to become an unforgettable Lumberjack. Even though Moses is seen as an individual who sets records left and right, he believes that it's a team effort that gets him to where he is now.

"I have five guys on offense and five guys running, so even though I've set the records, I believe it's a team effort, and I owe it to them," Moses said.

With all the records Moses has set for SFA and for the Southland Conference, it was surprising when he said he doesn't realize he is close to records until he sets them. For example, Moses was not aware that he was leading the Southland Conference in touchdown passes until the announcement was made over the intercom at the game against Central Arkansas, and he heard it.

"It's really cool how many I have set and been recognized for, but I really haven't ever stopped and looked at what has happened," Moses said. "As long as the team is winning, that is all I care about at the time. I don't pay attention to the stats until after the game."

When football season comes to an end, Moses will focus on finishing school and working. Believe it or not, when it comes to spare time, Moses isn't always throwing on the field; he is working to earn money. Working as a waiter or in the local Walmart are just a few of the jobs Moses has had.

"If I have spare time, I am going to work," he said. "I don't want to ask my parents for money when I can earn money myself."

Looking into the future, he plans to graduate with a business management degree and become a college football coach.

"If the opportunity for playing football comes, then so be it, but I really want to help kids and coach football," Moses said. A huge Houston Texans fan, he was excited to put on his uniform and play on the Texans' home turf at Reliant Stadium during the Battle of the Piney Woods, where SFA beat Sam Houston 31-28.

"I believed the team was ready," Moses said. "We were all very confident and knew that each game was bringing us closer to our goal of winning the Southland Conference championship; Sam Houston was just another game."

"As long as the team is winning, that's all I care about."

Senior quarterback Jeremy Moses threw for 489 yards and three touchdowns as the Lumberjacks rolled to a 36-13 victory Saturday afternoon over Northwestern State. The win hands SFA its first outright Southland Conference title since the 1989 season. It also marked the first time in program history the Jacks have won back-to-back conference titles.

SFA looked sluggish in the opening half but managed a 12-7 lead heading into the locker room. Following an NSU punt early in the second half, the Lumberjacks capitalized on the very next play. Moses found sophomore Cordell Roberson who broke a tackle and took the ball 46 yards for the score. It was the eighth consecutive game that Roberson caught a touchdown pass. The play gave SFA the lead for good. Roberson finished the night with eight catches for 141 yards and the score. Classmate Gralyn Crawford added eight catches for 150 yards and a touchdown. The Jacks' other touchdown pass was hauled in by sophomore Anthony Foster.

SFA scored 24 unanswered points to open the second half, and erase any doubt of the Demons getting back in the game. Northwestern State closed out the scoring when Tyler Wolfe found James Swanson in the back of the end zone from 28 yards out as time expired. The Lumberjacks racked up 540 yards total offense on the night, while holding the Demons to 302, and only 75 yards rushing. The Demons hurt themselves with penalties throughout the game and were charged with 15 penalties for 141 yards. Junior Devin Ducote led SFA with 12 tackles on the night while senior Kenneth Charles was a nuisance in the Demons' backfield. The Missouri City, Texas native recorded seven tackles on the night, including four for losses, and three sacks.

Not only did the Jacks win back-to-back conference titles, they also won the Chief Caddo trophy for the second year in a row. Carved of black gum wood and weighing about 320 pounds, the statue is the largest trophy in the NCAA. The Chief was born in 1961. SFA and NSU agreed that the loser of that year's game would cut down a tree from its surrounding forests and the winner would have an Indian carved from the log. According to the fall 1987 issue of Sawdust magazine, the NSU Demons won the game and the Lumberjacks delivered a black gum log from Nacogdoches to Natchitoches. NSU officials hired a woodcarver named Harold Green to carve an Indian from the 2,000-pound log. Chief Caddo was completed after an estimated 250 hours of carving over three months.

The Chief was named in honor of the Native American tribe, the Caddo, credited for settling the areas of Nacogdoches and Natchitoches, both the oldest cities in their states, and providing safety for early Spanish and French settlers in the locales. There are several explanations for the deeper connection between the two cities. The most popular myth at SFA, told to freshmen at orientation, is that an old chief told his two sons, Nacogdoches and Natchitoches, to travel three days west and east respectively, and establish villages where they ended up. Some versions say it was because the two sons were always fighting, which leads to an argument that the two cities were always rivals. Other versions say it was because the chief was dying and wasn't sure which son would be the better leader, so he split the tribe between them.

Teach It, Coach

Coach Schneider works to lead the Ladyjacks.

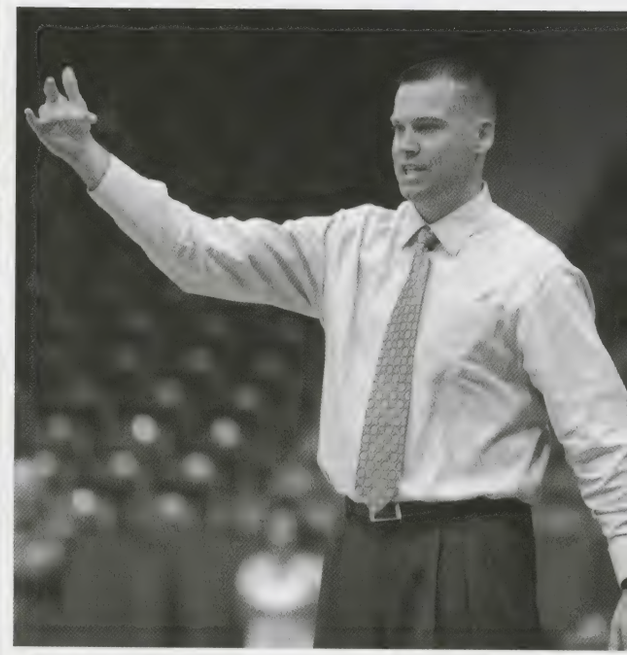
Written by Elizabeth Parks. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Brandon Schneider is in his first year as the head coach for the SFA Ladyjack Basketball team. He was hired as the new head coach in April, 2010. Recognized as one of the top names at the NCAA Division II level, Schneider comes to Nacogdoches after a highly successful 12-year stint at Emporia State, where he guided the Lady Hornets to a 306-72 (.810) record and the 2010 NCAA Division II National Championship.

After his time in Kansas, Schneider jumped at the chance to come to SFA and rebuild another team. His previous record certainly proves he is up to the challenge. Schneider was the first MIAA rookie head coach to win both the MIAA regular season and tournament titles. In 2006, the Kansas Basketball Coaches Association of four-year colleges voted Schneider as its Coach of the Year. He was also a three-time MIAA Coach of the Year. Schneider is well respected for being able to attract some of the nation's top talent on the recruiting trail. Since there are seven seniors currently on the team, recruiting has comprised a large part of his job so far at SFA. As of late, Schneider has signed eight new players for next year who look like promising additions to the team.

As far as winning is concerned, Schneider believes there is a great tradition at SFA. He thinks that the Ladyjack games already have a great attendance record judging from the student turnout at each game. However, he is hopeful that the more games the women win, the more the student body will show up and participate. Winning is his first priority, though. Before the games he gives the players a pregame pep talk but leaves them alone. The time in the locker room is the players' own to get themselves focused and ready to perform.

The Canyon, Texas, native was a 1995 honors graduate of Wayland Baptist University. During his time at Wayland, Schneider was a four-year letterman in men's basketball and was the school's first-ever academic All-American, capturing the honor three times. He and his wife Ali, a former fitness center manager, have a 16-month-old son named Cash. The couple is also expecting their second son due in May. So far Schneider has enjoyed his time here in the piney woods. Since he hasn't been here a full year, he has not been able to enjoy everything yet. But he does look forward to having some time off to really get to know the area.



TOP Coach Schneider reads over the statistics at the end of the game with the game announcer.

Team Player

Individual records have never been Eddie Williams' goal, he 'plays to win.'

Written by Mandy Bowling. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Lawton, Okla., senior Eddie Williams brings it all to the court without holding back.

Returning for the 2010-2011 season, Williams holds the second-leading rebounder record after playing 95 of a possible 96 games in his first three seasons.

Entering SFA's William R. Johnson Coliseum, Williams had a lot at stake, assuming that a 30-game season would set a new career record for games played in SFA's division 1 era with 125 games in four seasons. According to Williams, individual honors are not what is important to him.

"Williams holds the second-leading rebounder record after playing 95 of a possible 96 games."

"Although the individual records are great, I don't play for them," Williams said. "I consider myself a big team player, and I play to win, simple as that. My main goal this season is for the team to win the conference tournament, become conference champions and make it to the NCAA tournament."

Individual awards have been a great part of Williams' highlights. Last season he received recognition on the All-Southland Tournament team for the second straight year, Defensive Player of the Year and 2nd Team All-Conference.

Williams has brought a lot to SFA, and with a whole season ahead of him, more records and wins are in his future. Going into the final season of his college career, he is ranked ninth on the Division 1 career list with 318 goals made, and he has had 54 starts in the prior three years.

A future in basketball is up to fate, according to Williams.

"If basketball presents the opportunity for me to play, then I'll take it," Williams said. "I plan on getting my degree in criminal justice and hopefully going to law school."

Doing what he does best, Williams drives the ball down court past Grambling.

Hecklers

These fans may be harsh, but no one can question their SFA pride.

Written by Elizabeth Parks. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

If you were to pop in during an SFA basketball game at William R. Johnson Coliseum, you would find, among the many empty seats, a group of hardcore devotees known as "The Hecklers." While you can find devoted fans and hecklers all around the coliseum, a large group of hecklers sit on the visitor's side right behind the opposing team. This way, they can really get into the visitors' heads by yelling at them. Hopefully the fans can distract the opposing team enough to let the Lumberjacks score. The Hecklers don't see this as unsportsmanlike at all, in fact quite the opposite. As senior Alex Ranc puts it, "We heckle to support the Jacks."

"We call out anything and everything that moves."

Everyone has their own set of chants and insults that may vary from game to game, but a common one used by SFA fans is when the opposing team is up for free throws. As the player steps up to make the shot, fans will make as much noise as possible. The phrase followed is determined by the outcome of the shot; if they miss, the crowd yells "You suck!" and if the shot is made, "You still suck!" rings throughout the coliseum.

The fans aren't out to just get the players. "We call out the coaches, trainers, water boys, refs, anything and everything that moves, just whatever really," said senior John D'Eugenio. The fans will poke fun at anyone who is against the Jacks, and they hold nothing back. Some Hecklers have even taken the fun spirited criticism too far; when the name-calling and ridicule gets out of hand, students are asked to leave. While they are there to support the Jacks and bring the other team down, they are not there to pass judgment on the visitors as individuals. There is a fine line not to be crossed, but the Hecklers aren't afraid to push those boundaries. These fans will usually say anything to get inside the opponent's head and mess up their game. As long as there are Jacks to play, there will be fans to heckle.

Ladyjack, Lumberjack Track excel at the Southland Conference Championship.

Submitted by SFA Athletics. Photographed by Kenneth Collier.

Ladyjacks recorded an overwhelming performance at Maverick Stadium to win the 2010 Southland Conference Championship in Arlington. The Ladyjacks scored 201 points to outdistance the competition by 98.5 points. The Lumberjacks scored 134 points to finish second overall, just 14 points out of first place. The SFA men and women combined for 22 all-conference performances and one individual title on the final day.

Sophomore Nick McCloud recorded the Jacks' lone individual title of the day when he crossed the finish line with a time of 13.84 to win the 110-meter hurdles. McCloud returned to the track and advanced to the finals in the men's 200 meters and finished sixth overall.

"The Ladyjacks outdistanced the competition by 98.5 points."

The Ladyjacks got the track events out to a strong start with an all-conference finish in the 400-meter relay. The team of Keila Crawford, Arteria Sterns, Camelia Sams and Brittany Shorter clocked a school-record time of 45.82 to finish third overall. The Ladyjacks scored 19 points in the women's 400-meter dash, placing three within 26-hundredths of a second thanks to sophomore Mary Dickerson, Shorter and freshman Amahahra Edwards.

The Lumberjacks followed suit by placing two in the finals of the men's 400-meters with freshman Joe Barb finishing third in the event and senior Chris Moody placing sixth overall.

The women's 400-meter hurdle race was similar to the 400-meter dash, as the Ladyjacks placed three athletes in the finals—freshman Dezera Dunlap, sophomore Lauren Watts and freshman Christian Donald. The women's 5,000 meters was the third event of the day where the Ladyjacks recorded three scoring performances. Sophomore Stephanie Ganter finished second overall followed by Amy Shackelford at fifth place and then junior Megan Jenkins in seventh place.

The Jacks' placed three in the top eight of men's 5,000 meters—sophomore Mitch Ownbey placed fourth, Xavier Rodriguez finished sixth and Dennis Yeats got seventh.

Freshman Haley Parsons added to the Ladyjacks lead when she finished second in the 1,500-meters. She was joined by junior Marie Flores who placed sixth overall.

The Ladyjack recorded a similar result in the women's 100-meter hurdles. Senior Silent-Joy Egboba-Waye was second overall with a school-record time of 13.68, missing an individual title by 17-hundredths of a second. The very next day, senior Tabitha Riley returned to the track to finish seventh overall in the event. Sophomore Danielle Burchett added an all-conference honor in the women's 800-meters by placing third overall. Junior Arteria Sterns scored four points for the Ladyjacks in the 100-meters when she finished fifth overall. Sterns returned to the track in the women's 200 meters to finish sixth overall.

The Jacks' duplicated the performance in the men's 1,600-meter relay. The team of Moody, Travis Beavers, Donavon Sammons and Barb clocked a school-record time of 3:08.23 to finish second overall. The Ladyjacks closed out the meet with All-SLC honors in the women's 4 X 400-meter relay. The team of Katrina Turner, Edwards, Watts and Dickerson finished second overall.

Taking the Cake

Women's Cross Country announced Southland Conference champs.

Story Submitted by SFA Athletics.

Ladyjack Cross Country made history with a dominant performance at the Southland Conference Championships. SFA put four runners in the top seven of the race to win the team championship with a score of 34 points.

With the win, the Ladyjacks now have more SLC titles—six—than any other league program.

"I knew we had the potential to put up that kind of result, but we would need a really good race to do it," SFA coach Lou Snelling said. "To put four in the top 10 is great.

"To put four in the top 10 is great."

Led by sophomore Lauren Smith's second-place finish, the Ladyjacks landed four All-SLC honors. Junior Stephanie Ganter finished fifth, and seniors Megan Jenkins and Amy Shackelford finished sixth and seventh, respectively, to ensure an SFA victory. Sophomore Randi Wymer wasn't far from an all-conference showing, taking 15th to round out the Ladyjack scoring runners

Smith, running her first Southland meet since transferring to SFA from Arizona, led for most of the race. She was passed late by eventual champion Emily Koenig of UT Arlington, but Smith put up an impressive time of 21:38 on the 6,000-meter course.

Three spots behind Smith, Ganter clocked in at 21:44. The junior led SFA to a win at the Memphis Twilight Classic, but minor injuries forced her to sit out the Florida State Invitational.

Jenkins and Shackelford cruised in on Ganter's heels. Jenkins put up a time of 21:49, while Shackelford finished in 21:52. The fifth-year seniors were running in their final conference championship race.

Wymer closed out the scoring runners with a time of 22:18, just 14 seconds off a pace that would have landed an All-Southland honor. Senior Marie Flores was close behind, taking 17th with a time of 22:27. Classmate Meredith Blocker posted a time of 23:27 to finish 35th.

The team title is SFA's first since 2003 and moves the Ladyjacks out of a tie with UTSA for the most championships in Southland history. The runner' performance marked the first time in school history that four Ladyjacks have finished in the top 10. The team score of 34 points is also a school record and the best score at a Southland meet since Lamar put up a score of 26 in 2005.

Pink for a Cure

Ruggers give back to the community with pink jerseys.

Written by Stephanie Slabaugh.

In honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, SFA Rugby sported pink "Rugby for the Cure" jerseys throughout October. In the home game against the University of Houston, they debuted cancer-themed jerseys, that can be credited to coach Pat Kuhns and his wife Beth, who works as a radiologist at Nacogdoches Memorial Hospital. The initial idea stemmed from an SFA Greek organization, Zeta Tau Alpha, and their "Think Pink" campaign. Kuhns was inspired to combine the idea of "Think Pink" with sports, so he pitched the idea of promoting the cause to his players.

"We loved it because it gets rugby's name out there for doing good in the community," said Rugby Club President Josh "Caveman" Kuykenall.

The ruggers hope to raise money throughout the month and make a sizeable donation to breast cancer research. Thanks to its undeniable success last season, SFA was moved up a division by their governing body, Texas Rugby Union, and now competes in Division II, facing teams such as Baylor, the University of Texas, Rice and the University of North Texas. But, despite the increase in competition level, SFA plans to have another stand-out year.

"We have a good mix of veterans and rookies, and everything looks like it's coming together well so far. We're pretty excited about this season," said player Phillip "Crash" Hughes.

"We wanted to wear pink socks, too."

The Lumberjacks take pride in their new pink jerseys but are disappointed they can't be completely decked out in the color. "We were going to wear pink socks, too, but they don't make them in big enough sizes," Kuykenall said.

New Records Set

Lumberjack Baseball has record setting season, looks forward to 2011.

Written by Benjamin Fort. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

The talent pool in the sport of baseball runs deep, especially in the Southland Conference, and SFA has the players and staff to compete against bigger Division I foes and Southland rivals. The 2010-2011 SFA Lumberjacks will travel to Rice, Houston, TCU and Texas A&M College Station in addition to facing a loaded Southland Conference schedule. They are looking for a repeat of February 2010's 7-6 victory over Texas A&M in College Station, the first win in 18 tries since 1984 over the Aggies. That marked the Jacks' fourth win in their first four games in 2010, another first.

"This year's team should be in the top half of the league."

"We finished pretty well last year, and we only lost three guys off that team," said Ben Rikard, SFA media relations. "We set a school record for wins last season and had a couple of all-conference guys. The 2010-2011 team should be in the top half of the league."

The Jacks finished fourth in the '09-'10 Southland Conference with 20 wins and 12 losses, making it the most successful season since baseball started back up in '06 after a lack thereof since '95. Star players included the ace left-hand pitcher Tyler Herriage, kinesiology major, who made second team All-Southland Conference in 2010 and was a second team South Central Region selection by the ABCA.

"In college baseball, the 'Friday-night guy' is comparable to the Game 1 starter in professional ball," Rikard said. "Tyler is the ace. He was our Friday guy last year and the best starting pitcher we've had."

Other Lumberjack standouts include outfielder Bryson Myles, who was named the seventh best prospect in the 2010 Texas Collegiate League, a wood-bat league made up of college-age teams across Texas. He is the first Lumberjack to be featured on this annual top ten list, and five other Southland Conference players joined him. Lumberjack sophomore pitcher Brett Higginbotham made the 2010 all-star game roster for the Southern Collegiate Baseball League at Russell C. King Field in Spartanburg, S.C. Higginbotham is the only Texas native on either the East or West squad and has made five appearances for the Lake Norman Copperheads this summer. He has twice been named the league's pitcher of the week.

Much of the Lumberjack success stems from SFA's head baseball coach and the Clay Gould Coach of the Year 2010, Johnny Cardenas, who is entering his second season as head coach of the Lumberjack Baseball program and his fifth season overall at SFA. Newbies for the 2011 season include three players from the high school ranks along with three junior college transfers. "We are excited about this class," Cardenas said. "We made great strides as a program last season, and this class will give us an opportunity to continue in the right direction, which is moving forward in a quest to win a Southland Conference championship."

Two days after clinching a share of its first-ever Southland Conference championship, the SFA Ladyjack Softball team added some more program firsts to its 2010 resume. The Ladyjacks nabbed a league-high six spots on the All-Southland Conference Teams and took home their first Player of the Year and Coach of the Year honors since joining the SLC for the 1988 season.

Senior outfielder Kendal Harper was named the 2010 Southland Conference Player of the Year while head coach Gay McNutt became the first coach in league history to earn Southland Coach of the Year honors with two different programs. Additionally, sophomore first baseman Kayla Gutowski earned Hitter of the Year honors for the second straight season, making her the third player in league history to accomplish that feat.

Included in the count are four first-team honors, the best total in the conference this season. Harper, Gutowski, Briana Bishop and Monika Covington each earned spots on the first team and are all repeat selections. Ashley Struchtemeyer was named to the second team for the second straight year and Jessica Arana earned third-team consideration.

Three seasons after bursting onto the Southland Conference scene with league Freshman of the Year awards, junior pitcher Monika Covington has become the first player in Ladyjack history to earn three straight First-Team All-Southland honors. McNutt captured her fourth Southland Conference Coach of the Year award by leading the Ladyjacks to their best league season since joining the Southland.

SFA set a record for conference wins by going 20-10 in league play to earn a share of the program's first-ever Southland Conference championship. The Ladyjacks posted a 28-18 overall record to complete their third straight winning season, all under McNutt.

JARID SCARAFIOTTI

Jarid Scarafiotti was a walk-on for the baseball team his freshman year in 2009. By the end of the season, he was starting every game. "We weren't so great when I started," said Scarafiotti. "We've really turned around since my freshman year." Since then, he has received honorable mention in the all-Southland Conference selections and first team academic.

Scarafiotti is inspired by his parents as well as by head coach Johnny Cardenas. "My first year on the team was his first year as head coach," said Scarafiotti. "He's believed in me since the beginning." If the players have a problem, it's not unlikely that they would go to Scarafiotti first. "I feel like I'm the bridge from him to the players," he said. He has become the "undeclared captain" of the team and acts as a role model for incoming players.

With a major in math and a minor in finance, Scarafiotti also has fallen into the role of math tutor for the team. "I'm pretty much the entire team's tutor when it come to math," said Scarafiotti with a smile. Scarafiotti has made the President's list for the last two years. His other activities involve FCA, being a representative for SAAC and SGA.

KYLIE LOUW

Born and raised in South Africa, Kylie Louw is no stranger to soccer. She has played soccer since the age of four, even when no academies (sports teams) for girls were available. At age fifteen, she joined an all-girls academy and trained for three years while playing for the Junior National Team of South Africa. Later, she played for the Senior National Team until she was 19 years old. "I played in a women's club after that, and it was just boring," said Louw, about playing in South Africa. "There was no real competition. That's when I called my uncle in Austin, Texas." Louw's uncle referred her to SFA where Coach George Van Linder was in need of new players.

"SFA made me feel like I was a part of something," said Louw. "I felt like I fit in, even though I was from a different country." The only thing Louw had to get used to was the climate change. "I was so used to playing in a dry climate; the humidity was new to me," said Louw. Luckily, she adjusted quickly and has gone on to become a vital player to the SFA team. In her freshman year alone, Louw received First-team All-Southland Conference honors and SLC Freshman of the Year. Louw was also a finalist for the National Player of the Year award in South Africa. Louw describes herself as self-motivated and not one for failure. "Whatever I do, I want to do it to the fullest," she said. "That's why I plan on getting my master's in kinesiology." Louw is interested in working with biomechanics to enhance an athlete's performance after she graduates.

"Whatever I do, I want to do it to the fullest."

KAITLYN ANDREWS

Senior Kaitlyn Andrews is a native Canadian with aspirations to teach physical education and health at a high school. Andrews has been on the track team for five years now; her first year she was redshirted for a broken ankle. Andrews doesn't have siblings but describes the track team as "one huge family." Andrews is a shot put and discus thrower. "We don't really have any drama with the throwers. We all get along really well," said Andrews.

Along with throwing for the track team, Andrews mentors several football players. "I usually work with freshman to help them get acclimated to college life," she said. "I help them get organized and tutor them with the tougher subjects, like math." Watching her parents mentor student after student, Andrews aspires to have the same impact they did. "I just saw how they touched a lot of people's lives, even people who didn't like physical education," she said. Andrews aspires to be a positive influence on all of her future students.

Baker Pattillo

New perspective on a familiar face.

Written by Kyndel Lee.

Photographed by Hardy Meredith, SFA Public Affairs.

It's a common occurrence to hear the name Baker Pattillo on the campus of Stephen F. Austin State University, and seeing the face that goes with that name is just as common. Not every D-1 school president walks to and from work every day, to be among students and staff. But what motivated a man from a small Texas town to become the president of a prestigious university?

Raised in Arp, Texas, Dr. Baker Pattillo graduated in a high school class of 20. Throughout his high school career, he participated in One Act Play, the school newspaper, baseball, basketball and track. Above all, he excelled in football, earning All District and All East Texas titles. His achievements earned him scholarships to SFA, Northwestern State, Baylor and Tyler Junior College. Wanting to excel in academics, he chose not to play football and to put all his focus into his classes.

After two years at Tyler Junior College, he transferred to SFA, where he earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees. He worked as the assistant director of placement and financial aid at SFA, and then pursued his Ph.D. at Texas A&M. He was required to take a leave of absence to meet residency requirements, yet he still worked part-time for SFA. After advancing in status from dean of students to vice president of University affairs to interim president, and after working for five previous presidents and two interim presidents, Pattillo was named the eighth president of Stephen F. Austin State University.

Despite the fact that he earned his doctorate from a Big 12 school, his heart always stayed with SFA. His wife Janice followed a similar path, in that she, too, earned her master's degree from SFA and her Ph.D. from the infamous university in Aggieland. She is now the department chair of elementary education at SFA. Their daughter, Paige, also earned her bachelor's degree from SFA and attended law school at the University of Texas. To even it all out, the Pattillos have a miniature dachshund named Doches, who's always dressed in purple. She is named after Nacogdoches and roots strictly for the Lumberjacks.

Pattillo and the SFA tradition of Chief Caddo go way back, so far back that he used to take road trips to get Caddo from one school to the other. Therefore, the annual football game against Northwestern State is a game that the SFA president is not likely to miss.

"Most of my life is centered around SFA. I will always root for the Lumberjacks."

Pattillo laughed when he recalled one of his favorite SFA memories—the 1983 football game against Southwest Texas State (which is now Texas State.) SWT had the longest winning streak in the nation, and SFA went on to upset the Bobcats, ending their streak. Police tried to stop the crowd as they stormed the field at Homer Bryce Stadium, but Baker Pattillo urged them to "tear down the goal posts" as part of the victory celebration. The next morning, he awoke to find one of the destroyed goal posts planted in his front yard.

"Most of my life is centered around SFA," he said. "I will always root for the Lumberjacks."

OPPOSITE Dr. Pattillo gives the Axe 'Em Jacks sign in front of his home on Starr Avenue. The president has been a Lumberjack for more than 40 years. Board of Regents Governing body preserves SFA's independence, provides policy direction, inspires focus.

Photographed by Hardy Meredith, SFA Public Affairs.

Stephen F. Austin State University is currently governed by 10 regents on the Board of Regents, including one student regent. Every two years, the governor of Texas appoints three new Board members, who are then confirmed by the Senate. Every June, a non-voting student regent is also appointed by the governor.

Each board member serves for six years except the student regent, who serves one year. The officers of the Board of Regents are in office for one year from the end of the Annual Meeting through the following year's Annual Meeting or until his or her successor is elected. No member on the Board serves more than two consecutive terms as chair unless the members re-elect the member for each term after the two consecutive terms by a vote of at least six members.

According to Section 51.352 of the Texas Education Code, the responsibilities of the board members include preserving institutional independence, enhancing the public image of the institution, interpreting the community to the campus and the campus to the community, nurturing the institution to the end that the institution achieves its full potential, insisting on clarity of focus and mission of the institution, and providing the policy direction for the institution. DANNY GALLANT, VP OF FINANCE AND ADMINISTRATION

Danny Gallant has the job of keeping his eye on SFA's bottom-line. He is the vice president of finance and administration, where he has responsibilities for departments such as payroll and human resources.

For 27 years, he served in the United States Army, after which he took advantage of the G.I. Bill and earned his MBA from SFA.

When he's not in the office, Gallant is either working on his PhD in higher education administration or horseback riding, hunting or teaching his granddaughter how to play the piano. A classically trained pianist himself, he knows the value of music and still plays at church and weddings.

He believes that Lumberjacks naturally subscribe to The SFA Way.

"We got where we are with the help of others—family, friends," Gallant said. "We have a responsibility to help those we can. Look for ways to get involved with groups that will relieve stress and develop your communication skills." PHOTOGRAPHED BY THOMAS MOTYKA.

STEVE WESTBROOK, VP OF UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS

Dr. Steve Westbrook is the original Mr. SFA. If his trademark purple ties don't give him away, then the special purple sparkle in his eye and the warmth of his voice when talking about the University are sure to signal his love for SFA, which he says will always be his home. As a freshman at SFA, Westbrook was determined to become a lawyer, but by his junior year, he knew his heart lay in student affairs. He flashes a genial smile and chuckles, remembering how he told his parents about his decision to change majors. "They said, 'Oh we knew that.'"

> "You can make your university experience as full and meaningful or as shallow as you want it."

After receiving both his BA and MA from SFA, Westbrook stayed on, working his way to the position of vice president of university affairs. As vice president, Westbrook oversees programs and services that help SFA students succeed academically as well as personally.

Over the past three years, Westbrook commuted from SFA to Texas A&M University at Commerce to earn a PhD in supervision, curriculum and instruction in higher education. "The hardest part [was] starting," he said.

Westbrook said the thing he loves the best about SFA is the beginning of each semester.

"There's a sense of renewal every semester; a sense of excitement," he said. PHOTOGRAPHED BY THOMAS MOTYKA.

SID WALKER, VP OF DEVELOPMENT

Sid Walker, SFA's newest vice president, is putting together his new office on the third floor of the Austin Building. His voice echoes in the cavernous room, which is waiting for furniture, and the scent of fresh paint faintly lingers in the air. A stack of framed pictures and posters, Ansel Adams' "Yosemite Half Dome" among them, is propped against a cream wall, ready to be hung. A picture of his two blonde boys sits on his desk.

Walker is a tall man with a large welcoming smile and a firm handshake. He likes spending time with his wife and boys. He loves going on camping trips to Big Bend and the mountains of New Mexico.

When he's not spending time with his family, he is working as the vice president of development, in charge of fundraising for Stephen F. Austin State University. As a student himself, working on a PhD in higher education administration from Texas Tech University, Walker knows what it's like to balance school, work and family. He advises Lumberjacks to get involved.

"Don't spend all your time studying. The best thing you can do is help someone else," Walker said. "Don't pass up the opportunity to get involved with other people." PHOTOGRAPHED BY THOMAS MOTYKA.

RICHARD BERRY, VP OF ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

It's evident when stepping into Dr. Richard Berry's office that he has not strayed far from his musical roots. In the corner of his office sit his guitar and cello. On his bookshelf stands a small harp. On the wall hangs a painting of the Beatle's Abby Road album art. His table holds a set of coasters, each with a print of a Beatles' album. He smiles, waving at his piano-keyboard.

"Sometimes I play my piano in my office, but I usually play my guitar," he said. "Sometimes I take out my cello... I haven't played it in a while though."

Berry is also an avid reader and takes joy in showing off his new iPad Touch which holds many of his favorite books. His favorite author is John Irving, but he also loves works by Nacogdoches author Joe Landsdale, C. S. Lewis, Anne Lamott and Salman Rushdie to name just a few.

He admitted he never thought about being anything but a teacher; however, when the position of dean of fine arts opened, he applied and got the job. From there, he moved up the ranks to become provost and vice president of academic affairs. However, he has never stopped teaching; he still teaches a class every semester. As VP of academic affairs, Berry oversees the various academic colleges on campus, including the library and international programming. PHOTOGRAPHED BY STEPHANIE BALLARD.

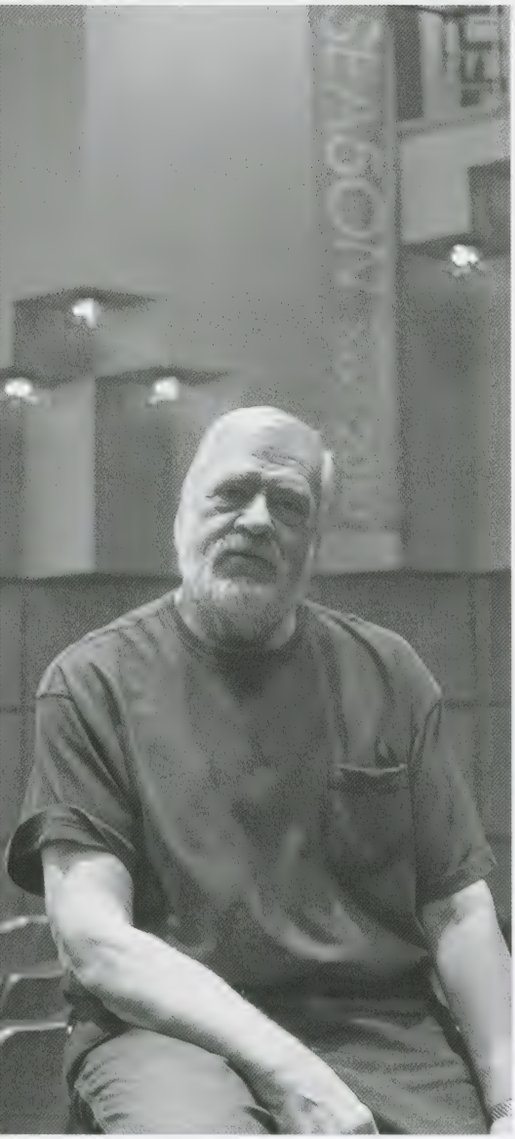
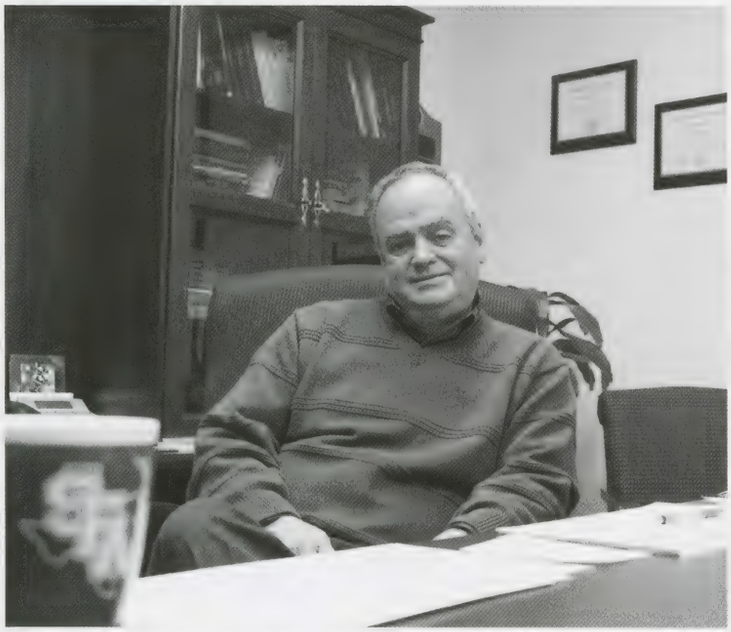
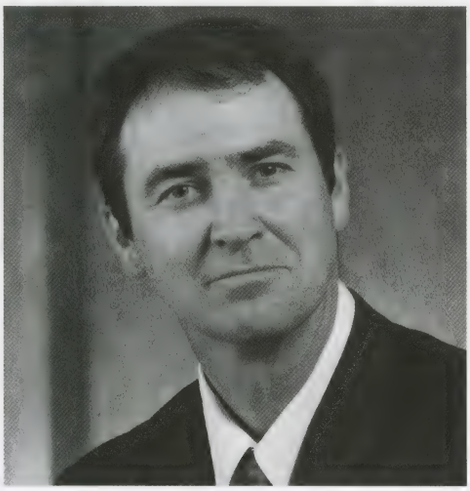
Professors Excel

2010 Teaching Excellence recipients proudly represent colleges, departments

Written by Veronica Ivey.







The Teaching Excellence Award is awarded to one professor from each of the six colleges at SFA.

Each professor considered must meet a standard of excellence, which includes being knowledgeable about his or her subject matter and enthusiastic regarding teaching and learning, as well as remaining available to students and using innovative instruction techniques. Effective teaching is assessed through student, peer and alumni evaluations.

TIM CLIPSON, BUSINESS

"It was a nice honor to receive the Teaching Excellence Award, especially since there are a lot of excellent teachers here," Dr. Tim Clipson said.

According to the business communication professor, students remain his top priority.

"I really care about my students," he said. "With any job that you have in life, the people that are the most happy can connect their passion with their work. I've been fortunate enough to be a college professor and live my passion."

Clipson has not always wanted to be a professor, but he has always wanted to be in a service position.

"I wanted to be a preacher at first, but I knew I always wanted to work with people, young people in particular," he said.

Clipson teaches executive communication, a leadership course in the MBA program, which he says helps students gain confidence. He particularly enjoys working with his SFA students because they "are not full of themselves. They want to improve themselves and be successful."

DANA COOPER, LIBERAL AND APPLIED ARTS

Although Dr. Dana Cooper has a lot of new and exciting things going on in her life, she still makes plenty of time to be available, something that qualified her for the award. "My favorite part of teaching at SFA has to be the students," Cooper said. "They are the heart of the university and the reason we're all here. To have the chance to teach and interact with them on a daily basis and get to know them over the years is the best part of my job."

> "At the end of the day, I can't imagine doing anything else."
> - Dr. Cooper

Even though she is an excellent professor, she avoided teaching for a long time.

"I had so many wonderful teachers over the years and was always so amazed at the passion they had for it," she said. "I just never really thought that I was up to par to do what they did every day. But I really can't wait to get into the classroom every day."

Being a Teaching Excellence Award recipient was unexpected for Cooper.

"I was stunned beyond words," she said. "There are so many truly incredible teachers at SFA. To be identified as one of them is an unbelievable honor."

MICHAEL FOUNTAIN, FORESTRY

Dr. Michael Fountain earned a bachelor's of science in forestry in 1970 and a Master's of science in forestry in 1972. He began teaching at SFA as an assistant professor in 1981 and retired in August of 2010. Dr. Fountain served as the associate dean of forestry for almost ten years and then as the Interim Dean of Forestry from January 2009 until June 2010.

SUBMITTED BY PUBLIC AFFAIRS

ROY JOE HARRIS, MATH AND SCIENCE

"This award represents recognition by my peers for a job they feel is more than well done," Dr. Roy Joe Harris said. "Many of those who received this award before me were actually professors I took classes from when I was a student at SFA. I felt humbled, very humbled. To be given the same recognition for teaching excellence as many of those who were so influential in my life is something that will be hard to surpass."

He believes his merit to receive this award comes from his ability and gift to engage students in the learning process.

"Once the student is an active participant my job is easy," he said. "My favorite thing about teaching at SFA is helping students who are willing to help themselves achieve goals that they didn't believe they could reach."

ALAN NIELSEN, FINE ARTS

A professor of theatre, Dr. Alan Nielsen expresses extreme gratitude for his department and the students he works with on a daily basis.

"Each year there are those students who enter our program excited about the art, excited about stretching themselves, and they in turn keep me interested and excited about teaching," Nielsen said.

Over the years, he has worked as a high school teacher, a professional puppeteer, an actor, a director, a playwright, a composer and lyricist, a musical director and a singer.

"But I reached a point at which I wanted to pass on my training and experiences to the next generations of young artists," he said. "Teaching in my field makes it possible to be an active creative artist and a mentor at the same time."

JANET TAREILO, EDUCATION

Dr. Janet Tareilo, assistant professor of secondary education, said her greatest passion in teaching is the connection with her students.

"I am honored by the recognition of effort in teaching, my peers and colleagues saying what I've done is beneficial and worthy," Tareilo said. But above everything else, she knows it's the students who make her job enjoyable.

"I like looking for those "Aha!" moments in teaching," she said, "when you know you've reached someone."

Unique Sweep

27-student expedition brings new meaning to research in geology department.

Written by Andrew Collins.

Photographs Submitted by Melinda Shaw-Faulkner.

The SFA geology department returned from its annual field trip to Central Arkansas with field samples and findings that are crucial for campus research.

Students and faculty who attended the trip departed from Pecan Park in Nacogdoches on October 14 in hopes of finding minerals, rocks and other land formations that would broaden their educational horizons.

Dr. Chris Barker, assistant professor of geology, and Melinda Shaw-Faulkner, adjunct faculty member, chaperoned the 27-student expedition that resulted in some unexpected finds.

While probing the Hot Springs area of the Ouachita Mountains, students were surprised to trace certain elements back to the volcanic signature of the 1830s that indicated the origin of the infamous "Bowie knife." James Black, a local blacksmith at the time, is said to be the forger of the knife that so many have come to associate with.

"I had a blast on the trip and I learned a lot in such a short time."

Another key aspect of the trip came when a local landowner invited the SFA expedition team on his property to delve into a piece of land, which he hopes to eventually turn in to a grazing pond for his cattle.

The invitation worked in favor of the team in more ways than one. Not only did they establish a local contact for future trips, students were also able to collect samples such as magnetite and brookite, which are used in the creation of steel and titanium respectively.

Throughout the trip, students were required to record field notes of their findings while collecting samples of relevant minerals. From there, professors using state-of-the-art equipment in the campus geology labs will further analyze the samples.

Educational field trips for the geology department began in the early '90s. Toward the end of the decade, the number of trips began to decrease. However, since 2000 the department has consistently hosted at least one trip per fall and spring semester.

"It was a really unique sweep of minerals," said Shaw-Faulkner. "The students were very enthusiastic about the way we were able to make it real for them."

School of Honors

Students gain additional recognition through honor program.

Written by Elizabeth Parks.

The School of Honors first began in the fall of 1992 with its founder, Dr. Tom Segady. It started very small, offering only a few classes in the liberal arts college. Over the next several years, the program grew with the help of Dr. Allen Richman as its director. Today the School of Honors at SFA is under the direction of Dr. Michael Tkacik, has over 600 active students and offers many classes in a variety of subjects.

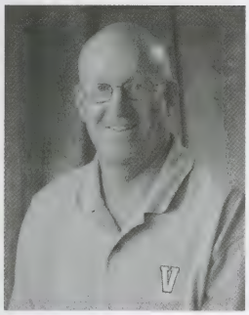
School of Honors ... has over 600 active students

The program is open to all who wish to join regardless of major. To maintain the status as an active member of the School of Honors, a student must maintain a 3.25 cumulative GPA and complete six honors credit hours each academic year, earned either by taking honors courses or by completing honors academic contracts.

An honors academic contract is an agreement between the student, the School of Honors and the professor of a chosen course. They all agree that the student will do beyond what is necessary for the class to deepen his intellectual engagement in the class. For instance, the student may be in an English class and be assigned an extra paper to write or presentation to give. This puts a lot of responsibility on the student and the professor, too, because professors have to be willing to assign and grade extra work. In order to graduate with honors as a university scholar, a student must have completed 24 honors credit hours; 12 from lower-level courses and 12 from upper-level courses. Although the students have to put in a great amount of effort, there are incentives for students who choose to do so, including early registration, a special computer lab, an honor study lounge, free laptop checkout, and free printing, copying, and faxing.

There are also activities that are available for the students either by the School of Honors or by the Honors Student Association (HSA), which is the student organization designed to support honor students. The honors program hosts events that focus more on culture while HSA focuses more on social and service activities. All of the events, however, are geared toward academic enrichment and learning but with a fun twist. For example, "Professors' Favorite Films" is an activity hosted by the program where an SFA chosen professor invites students to watch a movie and then discusses how it may relate to a certain academic idea or subject.

The students are given a lot of opportunities to excel and push themselves, and they do. It is a privilege to be a part of the program with all the tools and opportunities it can offer a student to help while they are in college and after. If one completes the university scholar requirements, they will receive a notation on the graduation program, on their SFA official transcript and on their SFA diploma. They will also receive an extra School of Honors diploma, diploma cover, honors cords and an honors medallion to recognize their accomplishment.



The School of Honors imparts upon the sharpest Lumberjacks the polish of recognition. Wisely Fellow Dr. Robert Henderson, assistant professor of mathematics and statistics, never anticipated achieving the honor of teaching those students.

"You could have knocked me on the floor with a feather," Henderson said, referring to the moment when Dr. Michael Tkacik, the School's director, accepted his proposal for an honors statistics course.

The Wisely Fellowship's purpose is to give a one-of-a-kind teacher a one-of-a-kind teaching opportunity to creatively stretch the minds of the honor student body.

The School of Honors selects its Fellow based on innovation in both the substance and the teaching of the proposed course. The fellowship is a special grant given to a teacher who applies and submits a course proposal in their field of expertise. Henderson's duties are to interact with honor students and encourage them in honor school programs and undergraduate research.

"It's got glass walls and a glass door, like a made-over closet." Henderson joked about his office in Wisely Hall, where he develops programs for honor students, such as inviting speakers to talk about real-life issues and teaching wisdom beyond the classroom.

Welcome to SFA

Freshmen in SFA 101 learn about campus life, University traditions, life lessons.

Sixteen years ago, in 1994, two professors began SFA 101 as a way to increase student retention.

Since the program launched, it has helped increase retention rates by approximately 8 to 13 percent. In addition, 55 to 70 percent of incoming freshmen, on average, tend to enroll in an SFA 101 course.

Although the class is usually more relaxed than other college level classes, it does have goals and objectives for students' success. The purpose of the class is to promote overall student success at SFA, which leads to increased student connections, higher retention rates and lower drop-out rates.

The objective of the course is to give students an overview of University resources, rules, and procedures, classroom learning strategies, personal surviving skills, campus and community service opportunities, lessons on the value of a college education along with lessons on university history, traditions and pride.

More than 60 SFA 101 sections are offered, ranging from a general focus to one that focuses on leadership as well as classes that target specific majors and fields like nursing, accounting and business.

Faculty and staff members lead SFA 101 classes along with a student instructor who provides freshmen with a real student voice, reassuring them that they are just as important as any other SFA student.

Dr. Timothy Clipson, SFA 101 program coordinator and one of its founders, believes the program has been very beneficial. He said the course provides opportunities for students to work and learn with great individuals across campus and make major connections with other students and faculty. Students are able to form friendships and become acquainted with staff members they can rely on to answer questions.

"Entering into college is a scary experience for most," Clipson said. "Participating in SFA 101 helps break the barrier of being afraid to ask... 'Where do I go to get this?'"

Research Legacy

25 years of Anthropology and Archaeology Lab.

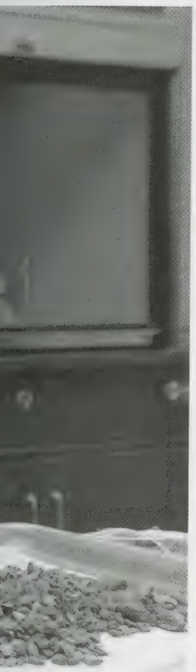
The archeology and anthropology lab is an ever-expanding department at SFA. Since the late Dr. James Corbin started the lab in 1985, many things have changed. In 2009, the lab was awarded certification through the Texas historical commission's curatorial facility certification program.



According to Dr. Leslie Cecil, the archeology lab director, "This means that we can receive artifacts from all around the state come into our repository to be cataloged for our collection."

In 2010, the Archaeology and Anthropology Lab has been working on a plethora of projects. Cecil directed a post-classic Mayan pottery study, assisted by SFA student Zach Overfield. Corbin originally headed the organization of collections from the Adolphus Sterne House excavations as a part of SFA's being certified as a curation facility for State of Texas Held-in-Trust collections. The lab students traveled to the Sterne House to tour where the artifacts where coming from.

"It's a place where students can come together ... and learn from each other."

Jenna Perce, an elementary education junior, worked on the Sterne House project this semester.

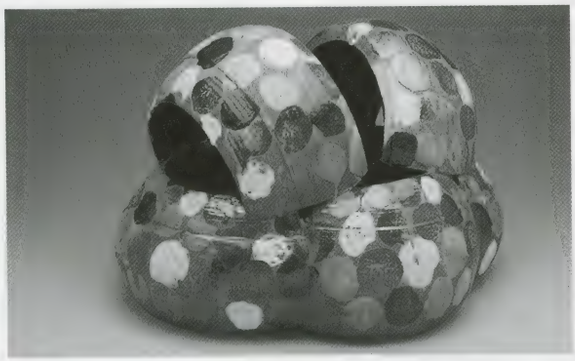
"This semester we separated all the metal artifacts and entered them into the computer for inventory, and now we have moved on to the ceramic parts," Perce said.

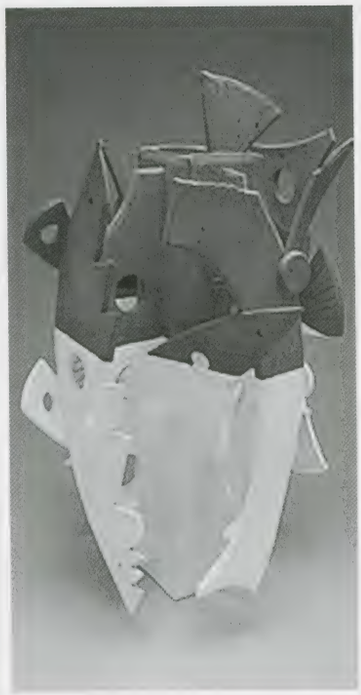
This is a long and tedious process, which was finished shortly before the end of the fall 2010 semester. The lab is also working on transferring artifacts from the excavation site headed by Margi Elliot at the Gaines-Oliphant House. Students sorted artifacts from excavations at Los Adeas, the site of the capital of the province of Texas, occupied from 1721 to 1773, now located near Robeline, La.

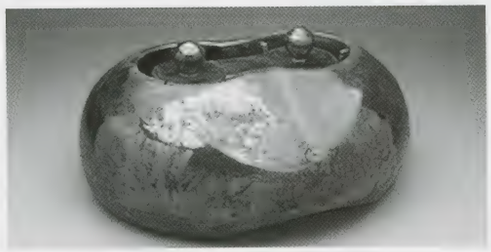
Since sorting and analyzing each piece of work takes a while, the students continued these projects into the spring and summer semesters. The lab has recently acquired some land to expand their repository, allowing them to take on more work.

Although the lab is always doing research and data entry, it is meant as a place of education. Both anthropology classes Cecil teaches in spring 2011 were a part of the lab.

"It is all about community in the lab, and that is how Dr. Corbin would have wanted it," Cecil said. "Not only community among the students but at the university and within the city. The Archeology and Anthropology Lab is educating everyone on Texas culture and its natural resources."







Dream Realized

'The more chances and challenges I have, the more rich my life becomes.'

Walking into the ceramics studio can seem a bit intimidating at first. But what might appear to be disorganization and clutter is the perfect working environment for Dr. Piero Fenci, professor of ceramics.

Piero, as his students fondly know him, works day after day to teach his beginning, advanced and graduate ceramics classes technique, heroes of the trade, and "how to be an artist," according to his teaching philosophy.

"I've had 36 years of students," he said. " Thirty-six years of being surrounded by students every day—that's how I stay smart."

When Piero isn't working tirelessly with his students, he is keeping his professional career alive.

During his two year sabbatical, the ceramist spent the time preparing for his first international solo art exhibition, which took place over the summer at Casa Chihuahua Centro de Patrimonio Cultural, the state museum in Chihuahua, Mexico.

La Cerca, the Spanish translation for "the wall," included 24 ceramic pieces. He was inspired originally by his neighbor's attempt to build a wall entirely out of trash, rocks and sticks to keep out "poison," which her other neighbor was supposedly sending her way through the air. Piero saw the futility in this and other structures our society builds to keep out the world's chaotic nature, and it inspired this collection.

"Everything fell into place beautifully, and the museum did wonderful," he said. "It was like a dream. If I died tomorrow, I would have a big old smile, professionally."

Piero is also proud of how far his ceramics program has come since he began at the University in 1975. Thirty-five years ago, his studio consisted of one "little-bitty" room and a kiln.

"Now I've got one of the best programs in Texas," he said. "I'm involved in life. I'm incredibly proud that my work helps others."

New Beginnings

Nursing students work together in unique hands-on experience, preparing for future career.

Written by Monea Beene.

Located less than 3 miles from SFA on North Street is the new DeWitt School of Nursing building, named after its benefactors, Richard and Lucille DeWitt. What began as a warehouse has been sculpted and refined into this magnificent building.

The idea of a larger building for nursing students had been proposed on numerous occasions in the past. The location was not chosen because they wanted to be isolated, they just needed more room and more space, and the only lot available was off campus.

It not only gave the School of Nursing more space to expand their curriculum and enrollment, it also allowed them to have more parking spaces and a safe and clean area in which to practice.

The overall planning and construction of the building took about two and a half years to complete. However, as of October 2010 they were still moving things around.

The School of Nursing building holds the latest and most up-to-date technology for health practices. EMTs, firefighters, hospital workers and other medical professionals are able to utilize the equipment and rooms in the lab to hold training sessions and practice skills.

Students here also involve themselves in the community and surrounding areas by visiting clinics, hospitals, nursing homes, family doctors, OB-gyns, pediatricians and schools in Nacogdoches, Rusk and Lufkin to practice. They also have the opportunity to administer flu shots at the Piney Woods Fair, conduct hearing and vision screenings at local schools, host birthday parties for younger patients and hold blood drives.

Currently, the school only offers a baccalaureate nursing program, which takes about four semesters to complete. Under this program, students may also earn an RN (Registered Nurse), certification or opt to continue studying at higher levels. The uniqueness of the nursing program is that it prepares students in a small hands-on environment so each student gets the attention he or she needs in any given area.

Growing Garden

SFA Mast Arboretum brings blossoming sights, hands-on experience for students.

Written by Elizabeth Parks. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

SFA Gardens comprises 128 acres of on-campus property along University Drive and includes the SFA Mast Arboretum, which is 10 acres and was established in 1985; the Ruby M. Mize Azalea Garden, which is 8 acres and was established in 1999; the Piney Woods Native Plant Center which is 42 acres and was established in 2000; and the SFA Recreational Trails and Gardens, which is 68 acres and was established in 2010.

David Creech, director of the SFA Gardens, started the garden world at SFA in 1985 as a project of the first Landscape Plant Materials course he taught at SFA. At the time, the horticulture industry as a whole was shifting toward ornamental and landscape plants, and Creech saw the need to create a living laboratory for students. The original purpose was to use the garden as a learning tool to teach plant identification, as well as landscape design and installation for students in horticulture, although that purpose has grown over the years and has become an important testing arena for new landscape plants for the southeastern United States. In 1997, the SFA Arboretum became the SFA Mast Arboretum after a generous endowment from Mr. and Mrs. A.T. Mast, Jr.

Students who are a part of the horticulture, forestry and agriculture labs such as Landscape and Plant Materials as well as Plant Propagation, use the Arboretum as a learning tool. Other disciplines beyond horticulture, including biology and forestry, are also encouraged to use the facilities. Quite often, art majors are found sketching or photographing areas of the garden.

"The Arboretum is a great opportunity to put learning resources in front of students," says Creech.

In addition to serving university students, the Arboretum also has an educational component, which serves children from K-12th grade. "The Mast Arboretum serves as the host site for Bugs, Bees, Butterflies and Blossoms—a week-long event serving 2,500 to 3,000 area kindergarten through third graders," said Dawn Stover, research associate for the Arboretum. Throughout the rest of the year, SFA hosts Arboretum Adventures, Learning Excursions and Nacogdoches Naturally events including a vegetable garden tended by youth from the Boys and Girls Club.

SFA Mast Arboretum also offers adult programming including the free monthly Les and Theresa Reeves Lecture Series—with talks given by horticulturists from across the country—and Saturday Seminars which include a variety of educational and hands-on topics taught by local experts.

The Arboretum is ready to move forward with the expansion of the Jim and Beth Kingham Children's Garden, which currently includes a timber frame pavilion, water feature and butterfly habitat. They are currently in the planning stages for an area to the south of the pavilion that will eventually include hands-on activities for children of all ages.

New additions are moving the Arboretum in a more sustainable direction. The addition of a Rain Garden will capture and clean run-off water from the growing facilities. The Arboretum also looks forward to implementing more organic methods of plant production and to the addition of an organic vegetable garden. While the vegetable garden will serve as a hands-on laboratory for students enrolled in Fruit and Vegetable Production, they hope to have interest from any and all SFA students who would like to volunteer to grow vegetables for local food pantries.

Celebrating 50

University Series brings an eclectic mesh of art, entertainment for half a century.

Written by Chidinma Nebo. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Originating as an idea to attract the arts to the Nacogdoches area, Dr. William R. Turner developed the idea of the "Performing Arts," a showcase of the fine arts department in 1960.

His mission was to offer exquisite entertainment to the East Texans who otherwise wouldn't have the opportunity to enjoy it. Renamed the "University Series" and now celebrating its 50th anniversary, the program serves as an avenue of entertainment for SFA students and residents of the East Texas area.

A menagerie of the many artistic talents offered at SFA, the University Series offers a variety of productions from a 15-person musical symphony to Broadway musicals. Under the music genre, an opera may be featured. For theatre, the production might be a Broadway musical, and under the art category, patrons might enjoy a national art competition with a juror.

As Dr. A.C. "Buddy" Himes, dean of the College of Fine Arts, calls the University Series a balance of pure art and pure entertainment. "Last year, SFA hosted a Beatles Tribute group to entertain the East Texas area, while this Christmas season, a Frank Sinatra Tribute group will be featured," Himes said.

He stresses that the College of Fine Arts offers fine arts, not just entertainment, to attendees preferring a less artistic show with more stress on entertaining features. "The perfect ideal is to provide a mesh of the two, arts coalescing with entertainment," Himes said.

As overseer, Himes is responsible for advocating funding to keep the tradition of the University Series ongoing and to provide the sponsors with adequate resources. Working alongside Himes is Director of Arts Information Sylvia Bierschenk. Her responsibilities include publicizing the events and providing hospitality to the artists.

"It's an experience that can't be placed on the transcript."

Apart from the entertainment the University Series extends to the Nacogdoches community, the series is also integral to the education of fine arts students. "It's an experience that can't be placed on the transcript, " Himes noted.

This showcase attracts nationally and internationally known artists to SFA that students and faculty wouldn't have the honor to experience otherwise. Fine arts students have the opportunity to participate in a "master class" where selective students perform for the guest artists, then later receive a critique on the performance. Students also have the opportunity to ask the guest artists questions.

"Students gain a sophistication of exposure to the arts and culture," Himes said. "The University Series provides an education for the whole student: mind and spirit, not just intellect."

The Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges program is a national honors program in which the students nominate themselves. The program is often considered the pinnacle of scholastic achievement.

Big Aspirations

Cinematography MFA program brings choices, opportunities to follow filmmaking dreams.

Written by Garrett Cook. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Walk across campus and take a survey to see what the majority of students are majoring in. Business, education or nursing usually top the list.

However, SFA also is producing a new breed of graduates—filmmakers. The Master of Fine Arts in Cinematography program enters its fourth year under the guidance of Dr. William Arscott. The M.F.A. was originated in 2007 and since then, six students have earned master's degrees.

Students meet in a building between the Social Work Building and an apartment complex on Starr Avenue. Here, classes are held and movies are edited.

"Our graduate program has really exploded since we moved the program here," Arscott said. "We moved into this building last spring, and we're beginning our second term now. It's been really great."

But it's not just a new building and degree that has increased enrollment in the film program. Whereas an artist like a painter or a writer sits down to perform a solitary task, making a film is a huge, collaborative effort, and Arscott has made the experience much more interdisciplinary than in the past.

"We work with the music department and Dr. Stephen Lias," Arscott said. "His students make the music for our films. People who take History of Cinema in the theatre department with Allen Nielsen can count the course as art history credit. We also work with John McDermott in creative writing and Jack Hefner in theatre, who teaches screenwriting. We are very interdisciplinary."

Once students are admitted into the program, they are required to produce at least three short films and for their thesis, a feature-length motion picture. Everything is hands-on, and students work in all facets of the discipline from screenwriting to filming to post-production.

"As far as I know, we are the only film school in the country that requires our students to make a feature movie," Arscott said. "We don't really believe that you can be a filmmaker until you've been through the experience of making a movie."

As the times change, so does the equipment. Movies are no longer shot on film but instead with high definition digital cameras.

"We used to shoot on film," Arscott said. "Film is so expensive. Our summer features are usually shot for around $15,000, whereas if we were shooting on film it'd be a $50,000 or $100,000 movie. The whole world has gone digital. I'm glad to see film go. It's phenomenal what you can do at such a low cost now."

But as any filmmaker will tell you, technology can get in the way of the most important thing: story.

"After the story, acting," Arscott said. "After that, you do the technical work and put it together."

Directors utilize actors from the theatre department, though professionals are often brought in. Films are shot mostly in the Nacogdoches area, though the department has gone as far away as Mississippi to do location shooting.

"Most of our students go on to work in industrials," Arscott said. "That means that videos you see at Target telling you about a new product, those videos are shot by people like our students. Some of our students have also started their own production companies. We have one student making $5 million movies now, and we have some making documentaries. There are many opportunities."

TOP Cinematography graduate student Ben Everett works in a sound-proof room rerecording dialogue from a film. The building also has an editing suite where students work on projects. When students complete their films, they move to the theatre-style room for a private screening.

LEFT Settled in between the Social Work Building and an apartment complex on East Starr Avenue is the recently purchased cinematography building. Before this semester, filmmaking students worked alongside other ceramics, drawing and photography students in the Art Building on Wilson Drive.

Ronnie Barra

Much-loved kinesiology professor retires after 46 years of service to SFA.

Written by Elizabeth Parks.

Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

After teaching students at SFA for 46 years, Dr. Ronnie Barra retired in 2011. Barra accepted a teaching position at SFA with the kinesiology department the summer after he graduated from Lamar University in 1966.

Barra has watched the SFA campus change around him. Many of the dorms had yet to be built when Barra first arrived in Nacogdoches while the student center, recreation center and some of the streets were nonexistent. The student body has changed also, growing and evolving in its diversity, behaviors and communication styles.

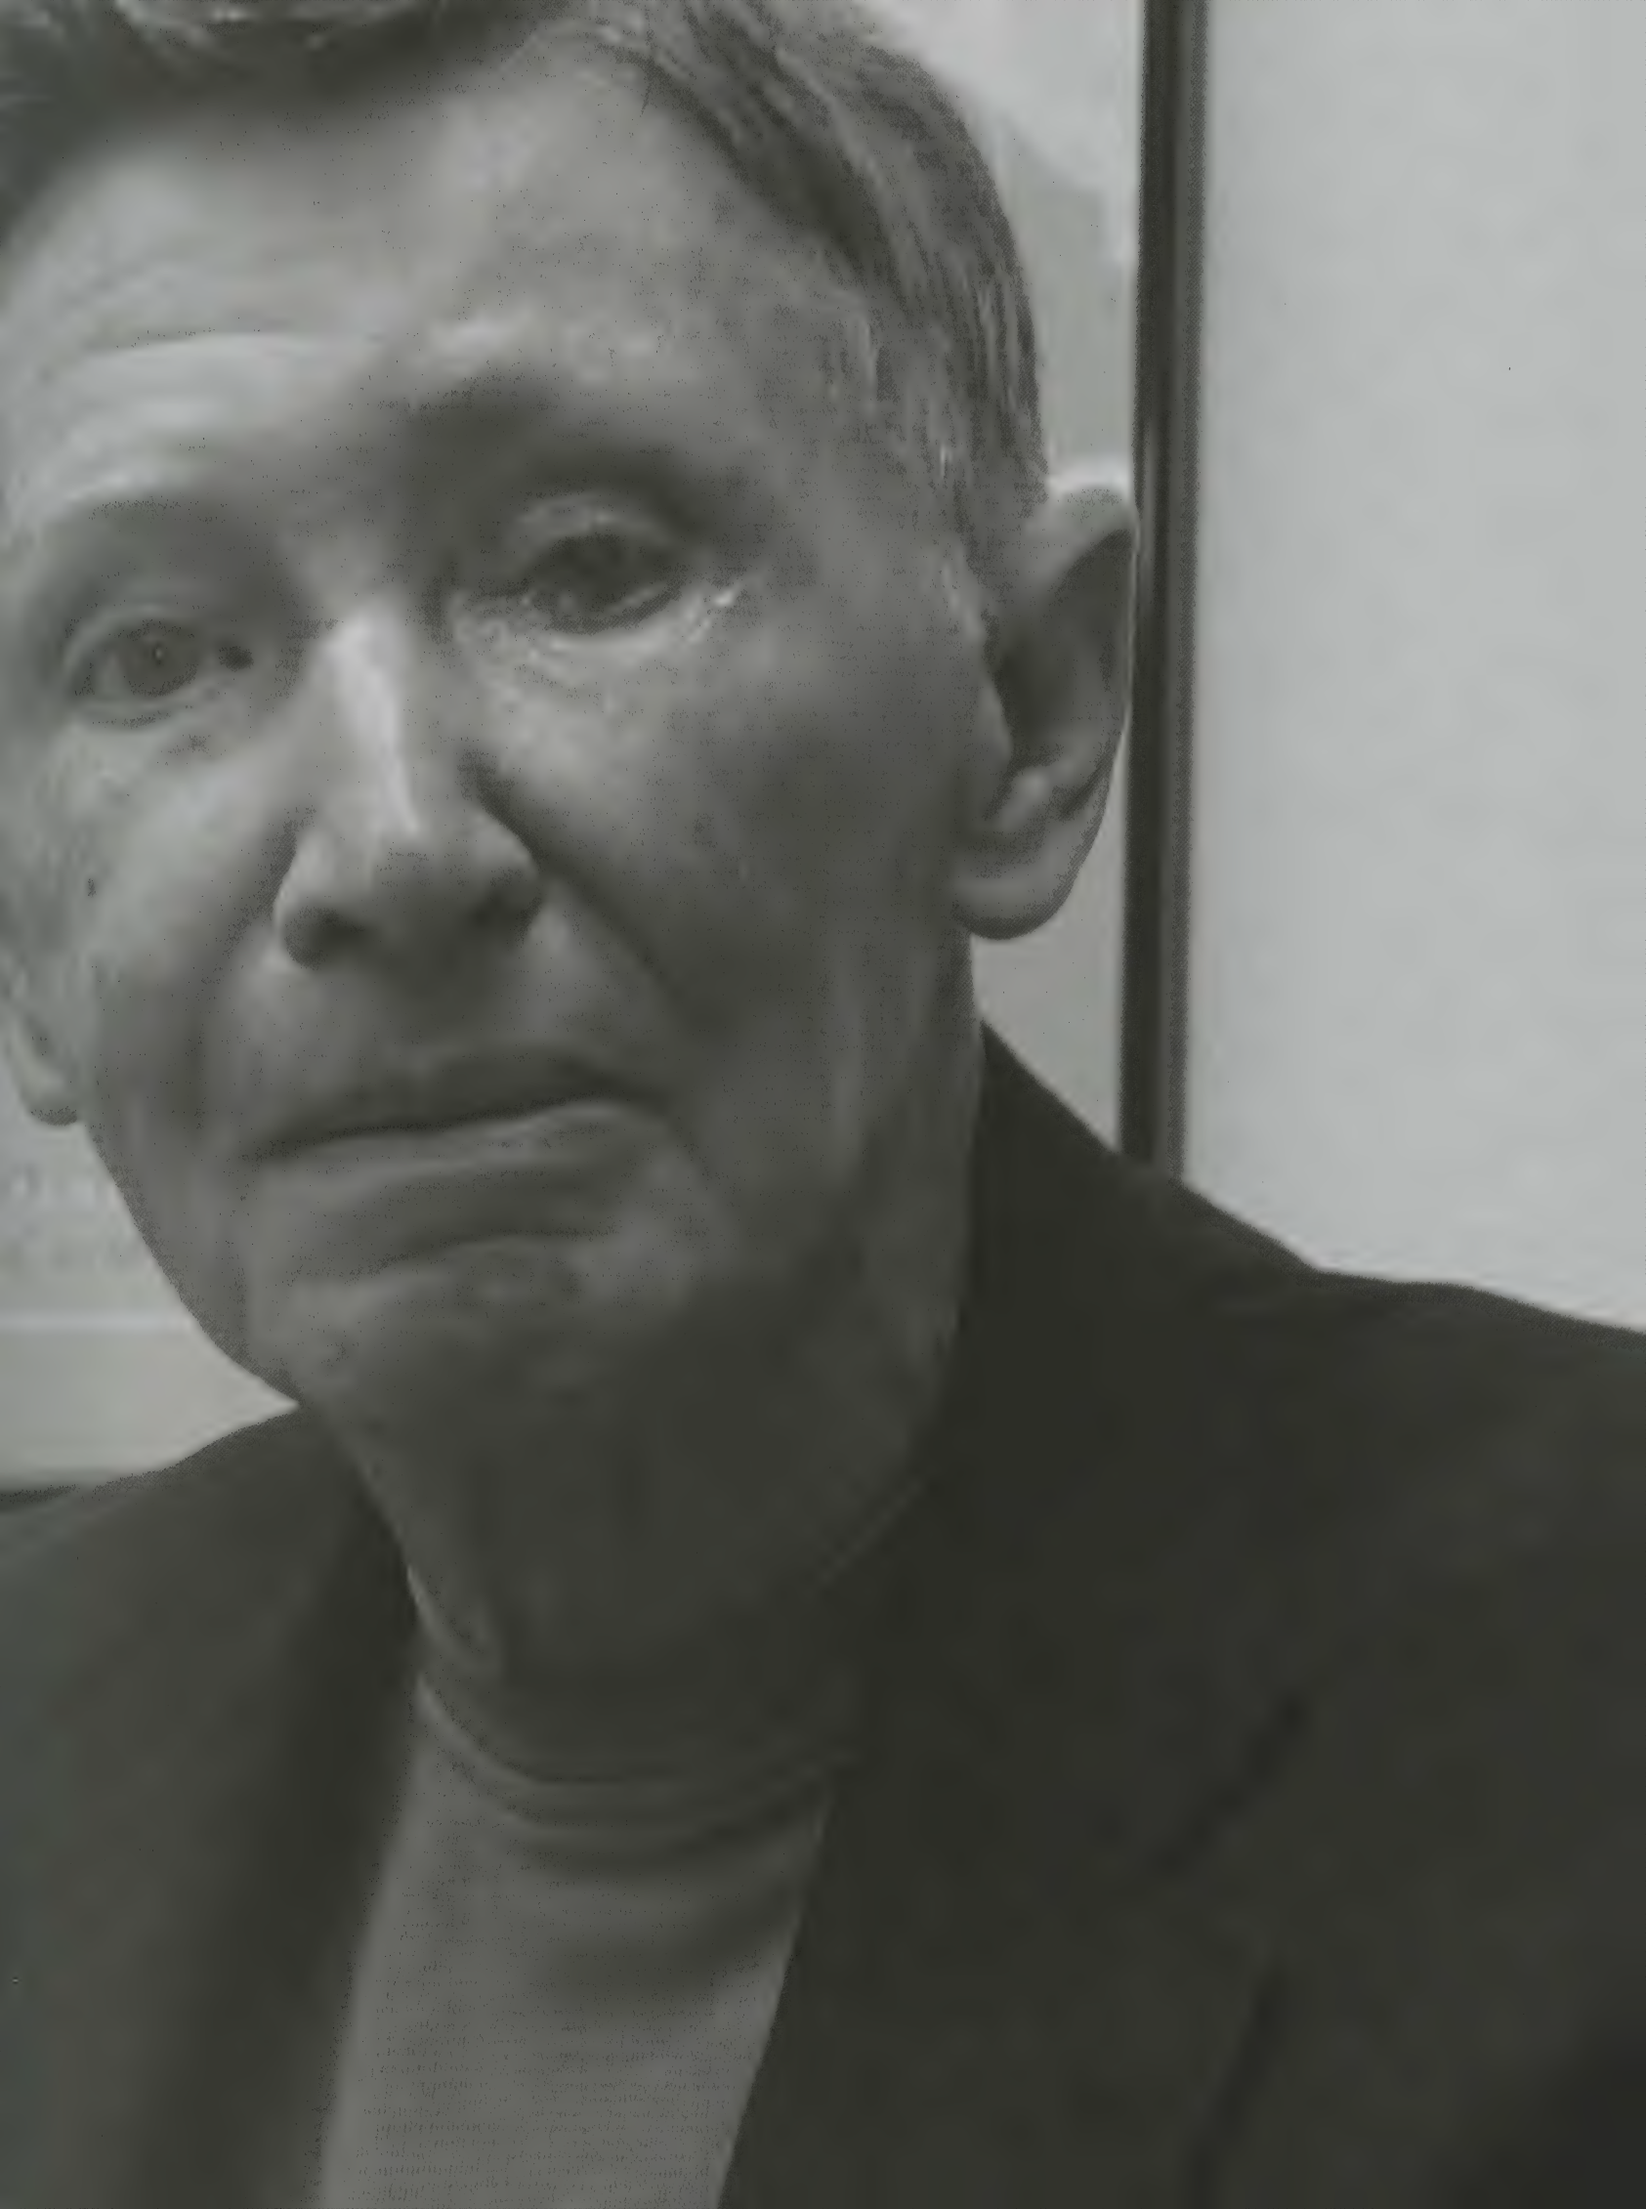
"It can be hard to keep up with teaching students as they change," said Barra. However, with years of hard work and dedication to his students, he worked his way up the teaching ladder. He began teaching undergraduates, then graduate students until he was appointed the graduate program coordinator of kinesiology, a position he held for 23 years. While holding this position, Barra still taught classes.

Not only did Barra watch SFA change through the years; he also watched Nacogdoches grow into the city it is in 2011. There has been an expansion in the population of Nacogdoches as well as in the variety of businesses, especially in the medical field. "I like life here in East Texas because Nacogdoches has the amenities of a larger town while still retaining the friendly, small, rural feeling," Barra said.

Even though Barra cherished his time at the University and is extremely grateful for the opportunities afforded to him, he admitted that his position needed some fresh legs and the time seemed right to retire. While he adjusts to his new retired lifestyle, he is still trying to decide what to do with his time. "I would definitely like to spend some time doing charity work and support an organization," Barra said.

> "SFA was already outstanding and I hope I haven't done anything to harm that reputation."

Barra looked back on his time teaching at SFA with pride. He has made many memories during his time at SFA, most of which center around his students and his interactions with them. He maintains contact with some students to this day as a mentor. "I loved working in such a great department and with such great faculty," Barra said. Many people have helped him along the way, including his wife Kathy, kids Bradley and Stacie, Dr. Bill Stanley and Dr. Carl Kight. "My impact at the school has been very minimal," he says, "SFA was already outstanding, and I hope I haven't done anything to harm that reputation."



Balancing Act

Students excel at finding time for work, organizations, socializing, while raising the bar for academic achievement.

Written by Elizabeth Parks. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

Many students have a lot on their plate, but for senior Demarcus Tave, one thing is crucial to success: managing your time.

"I'd say it's pretty difficult, but with good time management, it tends to work out," Tave said.

He is currently a member of Moot Court Team and Pi Sigma Alpha National Political Science Honor Society, serves as the vice president of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity and treasurer of Pre Law Club, and is a member of Honors Student Association. From 2007 to 2008, he also served as vice president of the SFA Young Democrats.

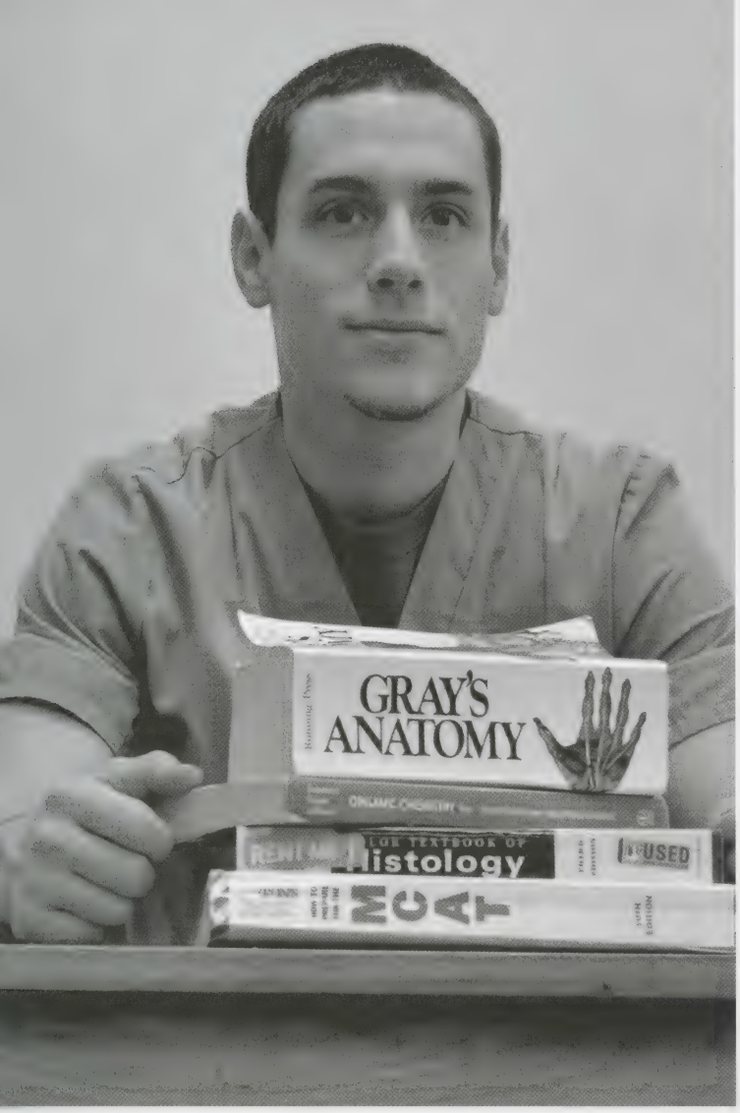
Among his awards and recognition, Tave was a semi-finalist in the American Collegiate Moot Court Association South Central region, qualifying for the 2011 national tournament. In May 2010, he was recognized by Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

In March 2010, Tave traveled to Houston where he was selected to present a paper entitled "Getting Rid of the Evil Doers: Why Pakistan Should be Top Priority in the War on Terror" at the Southwestern Social Science Association conference.

In addition to his numerous academic achievements, Tave also finds time to participate in community service.

Though he keeps himself thoroughly occupied, Tave does not feel like he is missing out on other things.

"I really haven't had to sacrifice much because I'm able to squeeze most things into my schedule," Tave said.



Brooke Kocian stays busy playing soccer, exhibiting her artwork and staying focused in classes. After a semester at University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Kocian transferred to SFA. She received a scholarship to play soccer for the Ladyjacks on defense.

She is working toward her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in art education with a focus in metals and jewelry. She has participated in numerous art shows, including the Unrefined Show and the Refined Show at Cole Art Center in Spring 2010.

Along with athletics and art, Kocian also finds time to participate in several organization, such as RISQ Magazine and the Art Alliance.

Busy with art projects, organizations and soccer games, Kocian must find time to keep her studies up. With a major GPA of 3.7 and an overall GPA of 3.5, Kocian has made the Athletic Directors Honor Roll and the Dean's List since Fall '08.

"I would actually have to say that being in athletics my whole life has helped me be a better student," Kocian said, "because I have always had to stay on top of things, set goals for myself, keep up my GPA for sports and work hard."

will be remembered as an extremely active member instead of someone who was just there," Jeff Briggs, a senior and medical school hopeful, said.

Balancing school, work and organizations and finding time to have fun wasn't always easy for Briggs. He has made some sacrifices, including weeding out some campus involvement to focus on what he considered more beneficial to his future.

However, he soon learned the key to his success thus far: time management.

"I have mastered the ability to balance studying, work, and most importantly, fun," he said, which he knows will be very important in medical school.

With his goals in mind, Briggs has joined more organizations to help him in the future. He is a member of the Alpha Epsilon Delta Pre-Health Honor Society, serving as its secretary from fall 2009 to spring 2010 and as president for the current academic year. He was also the American Medical Student Association president from 2009-2010.

He has served Omicron Delta Kappa Leadership Honor Society as a preliminary member committee co-chair in the spring of 2009, the historian in 2009-2010 and currently as president. Even though Briggs is involved in other activities, he still considers schoolwork his main priority.

"My busy schedule has, ironically, made my experience at SFA even more enjoyable," he said.

Students were moved to find a cure at the Nacogdoches Relay for Life.

Students from SFA and members of the Nacogdoches community came out to participate in Relay For Life at the Nacogdoches Expo Center. The event celebrated the victories that cancer survivors have accomplished during their diagnosis of this disease and aimed to raise money in the hope of one day developing a cure. Potential participants who were interested were allowed to sign up online at the event's Web site.

During the race, at least one person from a team had to be walking or running on the track at all times. Many teams at the event rotated group members to take turns walking on the track. There were various activities available at the relay to help participants stay awake all night, such as a carnival, dancing all night on the Wii with "Dance, Dance Revolution," ring toss games, football, hula hooping, a chili cook off and many other activities, including a Cajun food stand where participants could purchase jambalaya, gumbo, virgin hurricanes and other spicy foods. All of the profits were donated to the American Cancer Society.

There was also a tribute to all of those who have survived cancer and those who have passed due to the disease during the luminaria ceremony. All of the participants were welcome to walk with pictures of their loved ones who have had the disease, and they were also able to place a bag on the track with the survivor's name on it and a glow stick inside. Many SFA organizations came out that night to show their support, including Delta Zeta Sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority, Delta Tau Delta Fraternity, SFA's ROTC Color guard, Jack Attack dance team, Twirl-O-Jacks, SFA Pom Squad, SFA Traditions Council, SFA Steel Drum Band and SFA pianist Keith LaLonde. In the end, there were 42 teams formed, 544 participants and approximately $33,460.87 raised.

Bid Day

The five Panhellenic Sororities come together after Recruitment.

Written by Wendi Kunkel.

Bid Day has been an SFA tradition for more than 25 years. It is the final event in formal Panhellenic Recruitment, which is a week long event held in the fall semester. Potential new members visit each house several times during the week, talking with different members of the organizations and learning about each sorority.

There are five National Panhellenic Conference sororities at SFA, Alpha Chi Omega, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Zeta and Zeta Tau Alpha. All five participated in the formal recruitment process, with a record number of young women attending this year.

Before and during Recruitment, a handful of representatives from each sorority disaffiliate from their organization in order act as counselors to the potential new members and help them through Recruitment in an unbiased manner. These individuals are known as Rho Betas. June Parker, who was a Rho Beta, said, "For me, being a Rho Beta was a great experience and I'm glad I was chosen to represent Panhellenic."

"A new home was gained."

During Bid Day, every Panhellenic chapter met in the Grand Ballroom, singing and chanting, while the new members waited behind the stage for their names to be called along with the name of the sorority they are invited to join. Once they hear their name, the new members run toward that Sorority while their new sisters run to embrace them.

Bid Day was an exciting day for 183 new sorority members at Stephen F. Austin State University. After three days of walking around the Texas heat in uncomfortable shoes and meeting many new friends, a new home and family were gained by these young women with many memories to follow throughout their college years.

Steps

Taking part in University traditions, the Greek student body gathers in front of the Austin Building each year.

Written by Wendi Kunkel. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

The final day of Interfraternity Council men's formal rush, called Steps, is a celebration of the three days spent meeting new faces and finding new brothers. It's one of the biggest gatherings on campus all year. For over 25 years, IFC Steps has been a favorite day for many Greeks.

This year, formal rush began with a meet—and—greet with free food, a DJ and an opportunity to meet fraternity members from all 16 SFA chapters. Rush this year was also an opportunity to give back to the community. Potential new members and active fraternity members helped clean up trash at the arboretum while getting to know one another. This gave those going through rush a chance to get a feel for the philanthropy side of Greek life.

Steps has always been an exciting and upbeat event. Students and Greek members meet out front of the Austin Building, waiting for the new members of each fraternity to be called out of the front doors. Once their name and new affiliation has been called, they race down the steps and are hoisted into the air to be caught by their new brothers. It's a fun celebration and always seems to have a large turnout.

Omega Delta Phi

Submitted by Omega Delta Phi. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

The men of Omega Delta Phi are founded on the concept that in order to truly grow as an individual, one must experience views which can challenge preconceived perceptions to foster growth and enlightenment.

"One Culture, any race" is a paradigm that members of Omega Delta Phi believe in. It represents a completely new way of looking at oneself and the world he lives in and is a challenge to the closed minded to look beyond what they believe to be true and realize the truth is largely dependent on one's perspective. The motto also represents a philosophy that suggests the coexistence of various races can be a win-win situation if people are willing to learn from one another.

The organization's motto of "Crescit Eundo - It grows as it goes" is reflective of the ever evolving world. Omega Delta Phi does not rely on the past to identify with the present and future. Members of the organization realize that the organization's future is controlled by the actions of each member.

While proud to be a fraternity founded primarily by Latinos at Texas Tech University, Omega Delta Phi has always found itself in the position of appealing the people of many races and backgrounds. The question that begs to be asked is, "Why is this true?" It is that you will find that our ideals are universal. While other organizations focus on what they have been, Omega Delta Phi focuses on what it is becoming. Race is a limiting concept that forces people of a nationality and/or color into preconceived roles and expectations. However, any man will tell you that people of the same nationality can be different as night and day in their beliefs and ideals. A culture, however, is defined by a set of shared ideals, traditions, and values.

The True Gentleman

The True Gentleman is the man whose conduct proceeds from good will and an acute sense of propriety and whose self-control is equal to all emergencies;
who does not make the poor man conscious of his poverty, the obscure man of his obscurity ,
or any man of his inferiority or deformity;
who is himself humbled if necessity compels him to humble another;
who does not flatter wealth,
cringe before power,
or boast of his own possessions or achievements;
who speaks with frankness but always with sincerity and sympathy; whose deed follows his word;
who thinks of the rights and feelings of others rather than his own; and who appears well in any company; a man with honor is sacred and virtue safe.

Their open motto — "Dieu et les Dames."

Kappa Alpha Order seeks to create a lifetime experience which centers on reverence to God, duty, honor, character and gentlemanly conduct as inspired by Robert E. Lee, our spiritual founder.

Since 1865, Kappa Alpha has provided a strong foundation for young men to build upon. Not only do we pride ourselves on our chivalric ideals and morals, but we are able to apply these philosophies in our educational careers as well as our everyday activities.

The Delta Kappa Chapter of Kappa Alpha Order has been hard at work organizing socials, earning a vast number of community service hours and raising philanthropic funds for MDA. We hold a high standard and respect for our Southern Belles and are grateful for the enhanced image they provide.

Otherwise known as "The Order," the name Kappa Alpha encompasses more than just what meets the eye. A strong brotherhood, camaraderie and high respect for women are only a few things that we feel set us apart from any organization on campus.

Cheer Clinic

SFA's small coed cheerleading squad hosts a clinic for young children.

Written by Veronica Ivy. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

In September, the SFA small co-ed cheerleading squad hosted an all day cheer clinic for younger children, with the age participants ranging from seven to twelve years old.

The event is intended for young girls who want to improve or practice their cheerleading skills. The clinic is also a fundraiser for both the large and small co-ed cheerleading squads at Stephen F. Austin and is organized by the small co-ed squad.

The idea to host the cheer clinic was that of the head coach and spirit coordinator, Trisha O'Connor. "The clinic was a fundraiser for the small co-ed cheerleading squad. That squad is the only cheer team not funded by the university, so they must raise or pay out of pocket all of the cost that it takes to be a cheerleader at SFA," O'Connor said. "We give the student-athletes as many opportunities as possible to raise funds so that the costs they pay out of pocket aren't quite as outrageous."

"This is first time this fundraiser has been done in the last five years, but we hope to continue it annually," said Amber Leigh Williams, small co-ed cheerleading squad member.

"Their enthusiasm for cheerleading was inspiring to see."

There are forty-two cheerleaders on the small co-ed team and all of them participated in the cheer clinic, performing various tasks such as instructing, helping with registration and preparing material to teach prior to the clinic. At the end of the clinic, the participants performed a choreographed routine they learned and practiced that day for their parents.

"This cheer clinic was a wonderful experience for not only the younger cheerleaders, but for the SFA small co-ed cheerleaders as well. The young cheerleaders were a treat to work with and their excitement and enthusiasm for cheerleading was inspiring to see." Said Williams.

Ole' Cotton

Relic WWII cannon is shot off each time the SFA football team makes a touchdown.

Written by Elizabeth Parks.

The howitzer, Ole' Cotton, was donated in 1987 to represent the SFA ROTC Battalion both on and off campus. Since then, the howitzer has been fired at every home football game in support of the Lumberjacks. The cannon is named after SFA alumnus Lieutenant General Orren R. "Cotton" Whiddon (class of 1955). Whiddon is the highest ranking Army officer who has graduated from SFA and a longtime supporter of the Lumberjack Battalion. He was instrumental in the acquisition of the canon and in 1994, it was dedicated in his honor.

Ole' Cotton is a relic of World War II and a rare survivor of American military history. The 75mm pack howitzer was originally used with horse-or mule-drawn artillery. During WWII, the howitzer was utilized in all theaters, especially in rough terrain. Some were modified for parachute delivery and often air-dropped into otherwise inaccessible places. The pack howitzer could be broken down and moved by men or animals in six loads. The Marine Corps effectively used the pack howitzers to support beach landings by physically carrying the numerous components and quickly assembling them on the beach. Not many 75mm pack howitzers have survived. Those still in existence are either maintained for military ceremonial purposes or have made their way to museums. The ROTC program at SFA is one of the few college programs in the United States with a functioning pack howitzer.

"The ROTC program at SFA is one of the few college programs in the whole United States with a functioning pack howitzer."

In the fall of 2008, Ole' Cotton was returned to campus following an intensive restoration project over the summer. Restoration was needed due to wear and tear over the years from being fired at football games and the effects of the East Texas weather. Three local residents volunteered their services to restore Ole' Cotton. Lieutenant Colonel Ret. Dudley Mosele (SFASU ROTC & Class of '74), Marine combat veteran Johnny Key of Garrison and Army veteran Dan Shephard of Timpson provided the expertise and labor required to bring new life to the cannon. Additional support was provided by Rock Island Arsenal in Rock Island, Il, and the Chief Armorer for the United States Military Academy at West Point, Ny. The restoration project included the removal of rust, the replacement of worn parts and a complete paint job. The cannon was painted in the exact color scheme of howitzers in active service during World War II. The many hours of volunteer work were given in memory of the first professor of military science, Lieutenant Colonel James Calahan, who established the military science department at SFA in 1968.

The organization has been going strong for three years now. Our goal is to promote peace and tolerance by explaining what Islam truly stands for. We at MSA strive to create a welcoming environment for other students and faculty members who are interested in learning more about Islam. MSA is an inclusive organization open to everyone, regardless of their personal beliefs. In fact, we have already had a Christian president and vice president. SAA presents SFA Field Day: College Edition. Teams compete for a grand prize.

Written by Stephanie Ballard. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

SAA hosted a competitive field day event in October on the Intramural Fields. Numerous students competed in various events in hopes of winning the $500 grand prize.

A total of 20 teams, each consisting of five members, participated in the event. The actual event was made up of nine different competitive stations. Students competed in events including the three-legged relay, a Twinkie eating competition and a bucket and sponge challenge.

Teams competed against the clock in order to move ahead in the competition. The team recording the fastest time after completing the nine challenges was able to move to the next round, a game of tug of war.

The team winning the game of tug of war received an advantage by having 15 seconds taken off its final time.

Next, a challenge titled "The Inflatable Relay" determined the winner.

Nicole Swick, a long-term member of SAA observed the excitement and competitive action of the challenges from the sidelines of the Intramural Fields.

"It lets us go back to our elementary days."

"I think it's a good event because it's really laid back and it lets us go back to our elementary days," Swick said. "I enjoy this event because it has a little more energy than other SAA events such as "Open-Mic Night."

Skateboarding

Skateboarding club hosts in the largest race in Texas.

Written by Stephanie Slabaugh. Submitted by Campus Recreation.

The SFA Skateboarding Club hosted Nac Bash 2010 during October. "It was a milestone for collegiate skateboarding," said communications and marketing skateboarding officer, Michael Wilson.

The race was the largest ever in Texas and the first race in the state to include an organized women's division.

Besides a women's division, there were also beginner and expert classes. A total of 74 racers competed, which is one less in than the IGSA North American Championships last year.

The 74 skaters were made up of Texas A&M's Avante Guard, SLAB, Houston Garage Riders, Team Impact, Carve, Bombsquad, C-ment and independent riders from as far away as Tulsa, Okla.

The event even attracted Redbull, who set up tables, umbrellas and coolers. The Redbull girls, a.k.a. the "Wings Team," also showed up for the fun.

There was $1,000 in cash prizes awarded to podium winners of the expert race, $100 awarded to the women's winner, a brand new Arbor Deck awarded to the beginner race winner and $2,000 worth of prizes from sponsors put into a raffle.

"Some of the most talented speed boarders in Texas."

Skateboarding Club President Clifton Ellis took seventh in the expert race.

"Our team was ecstatic to host a monumental race that could facilitate competitive riding amongst some of the most talented speed boarders in Texas. Our goal from the start was to encourage growth on the Texas longboard scene, and I can undoubtedly say we more than surpassed the goals we set for ourselves," Ellis said.

Although only four women competed in Nac Bash, including a women's division will help make the way for women's skateboarding in the future.

"I'm so used to going to the races and watching the guys. It was really nice to see other girls that can actually beat some of the guys," said club member Katherine Timaeus.

Jacks Car Bash

Raise money and awareness by charging Lumberjacks a few bucks to bash a junk yard car.

Driving Jacks allowed students to participate in the demolition of a wrecked car during their annual Car Bash in the plaza near Surfin' Steve to help raise awareness for the National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness (NCAA) Week in October.

The Car Bash was also a celebration of the nearly 11,000 Lumberjacks saved from drunk driving since Spring 2007. "It was a success, as usual," said Sophomore Warren Upson, Driving Jacks historian.

By paying the organization $1, students were able to take a sledgehammer and take any two hits at the vehicle. For $10, students were allowed 10 hits.

Eyes were drawn to the area as echoes from the event moved through campus. With metal collapsing and taillights shattering, the members of Driving Jacks were able to get their message across with a bang. Some Lumberjacks even boarded the top of the old Ford, donated by Joey Ross Towing Company, to swing away at the car with the sledgehammer, as if they were using an axe. "They bash this car so bad, you can feel the intensity of the hits," Upson said. Gloves and glasses were also required.

"Over 80 people had the courage to take a few swings," said Marissa Ford, director of fundraising for Driving Jacks. "We let people take hits to relieve stress. It's a great way to get our name out and spread the message about not drinking and driving."

According to Justin Saunders, a board member for Driving Jacks, this annual event is always held the week before the football game against Sam Houston. Also, with Homecoming activities taking place the following week, the event allows the organization to once again remind students of the importance of always using a designated driver and following safe precautions when consuming alcohol.

OPPOSITE TOP During the fundraiser, Grant Korbel took his turn by taking off the rear-view mirror of the junk yard car. "The car bash raises money for Driving Jacks, while at the same time letting students get their anger out on the bearkats," Korbel said.

OPPOSITE BOTTOM, FAR LEFT Margie Nesbitt towers over the vehicle as she smashes in the roof.

The Pine Log

Source for SFA news and events to keep faulty and students informed and entertained.

Written by Audrey Spencer. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

The Pine Log has both advocates and critics. However, as an entity that has been named best college newspaper in the state in its division by the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association multiple times, it is worthy of respect.

The mission statement of the Department of Student Publications, of which The Pine Log is a part, has three goals:

"To provide students with a professionally managed laboratory in which they can gain practical experience in all areas of publishing; to produce publications that will inform students, faculty and staff of events and activities occurring on the SFA campus; and to give members of the campus community a public forum where they can express their ideas and opinions on a variety of issues affecting the University as a whole," (Department of Student Publications' Mission Statement).

"Named best college newspaper in the state in its division by the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association."

The Pine Log began printing when SFA opened and has always been student-run. One of The Pine Log's biggest obstacles is mistrust of a student-run media outlet.

"People distrust student reporters. They're afraid they won't be professional or that they'll bend words... No one likes to talk about bad news," according to Pat Spence, director of student publications.

Like major newspapers, The Pine Log is self-sustaining. "It has to make its own way financially by selling enough advertising to support itself," Spence said. Some Texas college newspapers are funded, sometimes handsomely, by their institutions.

The Pine Log, however, does have advantages: The lack of pressure on The Pine Log from constraints such as prior review, which gives an institution the right to read and approve articles before they're published, is thanks , in part, to the support of the University president, Dr. Baker Pattillo.

"Dr. Pattillo understands the role of a student press, which makes for an extremely healthy student paper," Spence said. "He may not always like what it has to say, but he defends the right to say it, which is pretty remarkable."

The Pine Log's current editor-in-chief, Jonathan Garris, has a similar perception.

"The people who come to work here haven't changed much. When it comes to getting stories, you have to be sociable," he said. "Most people here are as far from shy as you can be."

Although most changes to The Pine Log have been mechanical, it is still a top source of information about the goings-on at SFA. The entertainment value doesn't hurt either, with the Sudoku puzzles, Axes Up and Axes Down, and The Crime Log most cited as favorite features by casual and avid student readers.

"Twice a week, we give the University information they need to know, tell them what people are talking about, and what's coming up," Spence said.

RIGHT James Tieken: "Being a Jack Walker is being confident, knowledgeable about the campus, and you can't carry an axe handle during just any job. We spread spirit like butter on a roll. I usually advise all incoming freshman to go sit in Purple Haze."

BELOW With a welcoming friendly smile, Jack Walker Blake Horn gives promising freshman and their parents a tour of the Stephen F. Austin State University campus.

A potential student's first face-to-face interaction with SFA is often with the Jack Walker, or J-Walker, who greets the student and their family when they arrive for a campus tour.

"The name Jack Walkers actually came from a brainstorming meeting after we hired our first group of tour guides," said Ryan Horne, senior admissions counselor. "We wanted something that represented SFA as well as something that visitors would remember when they left. Our name is a play on words that is very unique to our school. When a J-Walker says 'We will be J-Walking on campus today, all legal of course,' families get a kick out of it."

"We'll be J-Walking on campus today."

The J-Walkers carry an axe handle on tour, which is another unique feature of the program. "The J-Walkers promote Lumberjack spirit and tradition throughout the tour, giving potential students an authentic Lumberjack Experience," said Horne.

Prospective students learn basic information about SFA during guided tours but not in the typical scripted fashion. "Rather than pointing at a building and saying this is the Liberal Arts building and you have history classes in there and the average class size is 27 students, the J-Walkers take you into the class. Some will find their seat, have the group sit down, and then talk about the class they had there and how they interacted with their professors." Each tour is a reflection of the individual J-Walkers and their experiences here at SFA.

J-Walkers also use the phrase Engage the Senses – this means they want visitors to not only use sight to enjoy campus. Visitors are walked by Einstein Bros. or Panda Express to smell the food. They are encouraged to feel the pine needles so they know they are deep in the East Texas piney woods and, even though it's noisy walking down East College, J-Walkers remind tour groups to relax and hear all the sounds of college.

"When you see groups walking around campus, feel free to say Axe 'Em Jacks," Horne said. "Give a high five or just say hello. It is the overall experience that families get while touring campus that makes SFA special. Every student is part of it."

Swingin' Jacks

SFA students partner up and learn to swing dance.

Numerous students gathered weekly to help an old style of dance make a comeback among the student population at SFA. Keeping the art of swing dance alive, the members of the SFA Swingin' Jacks put their skills to use as they graced the floor with a variety of steps learned during their weekly meetings.

The organization met on Tuesday of every week from 8 to 10 p.m. The meetings generally begin by breaking up the attendees into two groups—those who were new to the organization and those who had previously attended. Next, the instructor introduced the new steps of the evening and reviewed what has been learned at past meetings.

With most meetings, the first hour was used to teach those in attendance new steps, and the second hour was used to actually dance and practice to music.

President of Swingin' Jacks, Annaliese Wagner, led by example as she showed the dancing couples how to execute the moves presented. Wagner became interested in the group when she saw an advertisement to join Swingin' Jacks on her way to class one day. Even though the advertisement was outdated, Wagner was still able to attend the meetings and became an integral part of the group. After joining, attending the weekly meetings became one of her great passions.

Speaking of the success of the organization, Wagner commented, "I think the high point of the semester was the October dance we had. A lot of people came and had a lot of fun."

Members of the organization take great pride in participating in Swingin' Jacks. By learning new steps and practicing the art of a style of dance now fleeting, students involved in the group keep both swing dance and their passion for it, alive.

On a festive, chilly night of tailored wool jackets with tights and stiletto boots, RISQ Magazine, an art magazine organized by a group of SFA students, hosted a fashion show at the Cole Art Center. According to Ryan Mahar, RISQ steering committee member, the purpose of the event was to debut the magazine. "We are not reporting about fashion only, but art in its entirety. Fashion is a form of art," said Mahar. "SFA has a robust community of artists. We want to fulfill the need of reporting about the art community."

Along with the debut of the magazine, a makeup artist, three stylists and one fashion designer were the featured artists of the evening.

While audience members of mixed ages waited for the fashion show to begin, they were engulfed by the ambience of the Cole Art Center's current exhibit of African art and sculpture. "The stylists worked with the art that was already on display to help create a cohesive look," said Mahar. LaMonica Taylor, a student who served as hostess for the event and a self-proclaimed poet, opened the show with a reading of an original poem dedicated to fashionable women.

Dominique Sellers volunteered to be a runway model for RSIQ's Fashion Show to help support the organization.

as a form of art. The models were adorned with rhinestones, bedazzled eyes and artistic body paintings. Babiche, who was responsible for the makeup and hair styling for her portion of the show, said, "I like giving my family and friends makeovers to bring out their hidden beauty. I love the confidence that comes with sparkly lip gloss and rosy cheeks."

Three student stylists followed, Sarah Horner, Katie Festervan and Gary Sellers. Sellers presented a black and white themed line while Horner presented a line of outfits composed entirely of clothing found at the local Goodwill store. "The clothing was borrowed," said Mahar. "Horner's goal was to demonstrate that a fashionable outfit can be made of clothing from Goodwill."

"A fashionable outfit can be made of clothing from Goodwill."

Heather Wobbe, an Art Metals and Jewelry major and aspiring designer, was the only designer to participate in the show. Her line, inspired by the French Rivera, featured vintage styles made entirely by hand, from the unique hair pieces to the uniformed striped sashes found clad around every models' waist. "Wobbe made her pieces by hand, from bolts of fabric and sheets of metal," Mahar said.

Mexican Enough

Author Stephanie Elizondo Griest brings a strong cultural messages to SFA students.

Written by Moises Hernandez. Photographed by Thomas Motyka.

During October 2010, the Organization of Latin Americans (OLA), The SFA English department and the Office of Multicultural Affairs teamed up to treat SFA students with a visit from Stephanie Elizondo Griest, a Latin American activist and journalist, who read excerpts and spoke vividly from her latest released book titled "Mexican Enough: My Life between the Borderlines."

The audience was responsive as she danced and read from her book accounts of various parts of her life. And the readings opened up many questions regarding race, religion and cultural identity.

Griest focused on her central message, which revolved around the pains of growing up and not truly knowing if you are a part of your own culture.

"Most of it is just a head trip," Griest said. "It's our perception of how others view us rather than how we actually independently feel ourselves. Don't fall prey to that. That's the message, I think. It can cause a lot of unnecessary angst and suffering."

As a woman from southern Texas, she admitted she could relate more with Texas students and even more so to the students who hardly knew Spanish. Spanish was a language she did not know for nearly her entire life, but it was because she knew no Spanish that Griest found another incentive to reconnect with her roots.

"We're all everyone," Griest said. "So there is this concept of feeling insecure about not being Mexican enough, which is an insecurity that I had my entire life. I always felt guilty, I was getting awards that I didn't think I deserved, and it was really a painful part of growing up. I came to realize it as Cultural Schizophrenia. A lot of us really suffer from that, especially in college when we're all questioning these things. But that means we're also on the right track because we're questioning things. It's a good thing to question. Ultimately when we find the answers, those answers make us strong, and to me it was just to see the beauty, the power and the strength of my ancestry."

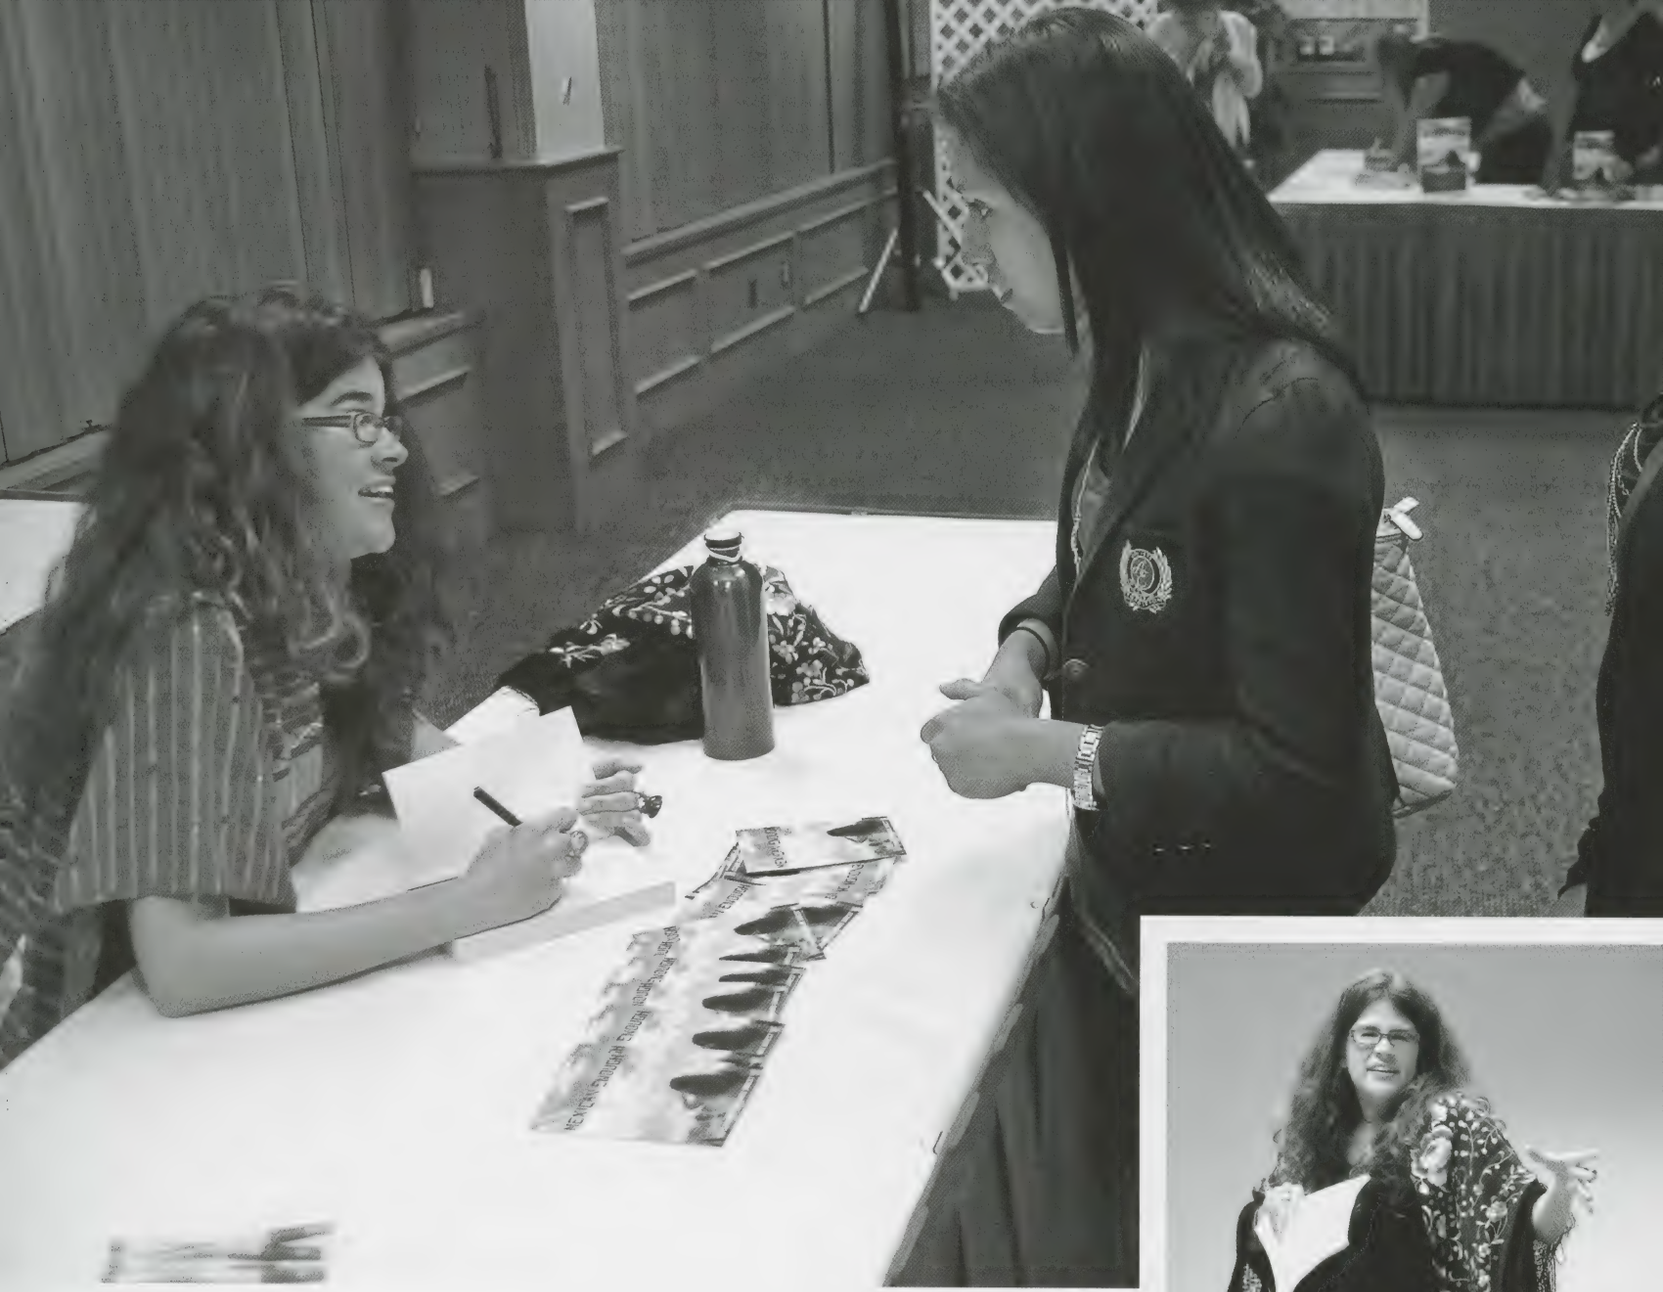
> "There is this concept of feeling insecure about not being Mexican enough, which is an insecurity that I had my entire life."

Danny Chavez, vice president of OLA, expressed the significance of listening to Griest and other speakers with unique backgrounds.

"There are a lot of topics that these speakers bring up that sometimes you might not know about. Take this for example, this event wasn't just about Mexico. We also learned about Russian and Cuban cultures as well. In general, it's about cultural awareness."

She explained the importance of college students appreciating what they have. As an alumna of the University of Texas, she was proud of going to college with the support and help of not only her family but of her entire ancestry. So what did the author have to say about students who also are confused about their cultures?

"Draw strength from your ancestry because your roots can make you strong." Griest advised. "No matter what's happening in my life, it can't compare to a man who's about to cross the desert for four days or the people that have been sleeping on cardboard for forty days and forty nights. If they can do that, then I sure as hell can do my exam or my thesis or my fight with my boyfriend."



TOP Stephanie Elizondo, the author of "Mexican Enough," signs her book for enthusiastic fan Jenifer Santos who attended the event.

SFA campus shut down for a snow day, due to freezing temperatures and rain. Many roads, streets, bridges and overpasses in and around Lufkin and Nacogdoches were covered in sheets of ice. PHOTOGRAPHED BY CODY DEROUEN.

The 2010 Pineywoods Fair was held at the Nacogdoches Expo Center. Events at the fair included a cheerleading competition, broiler show, tractor pulling and a beauty pageant, among other competitions and performances. PHOTOGRAPHED BY THOMAS MOTYKA.

The Bonfire is a traditional event held the night before Homecoming each year. It takes place on the Intramural Fields where students, alumni and the Nacogdoches community gather to watch the fire, pep rally and view the fireworks. PHOTOGRAPHED BY CODY DEROUEN.

Colophon 2011

The 86th edition of the Stone Fort was the creation of an all-student staff at Stephen F. Austin State University. The book was printed by Taylor Publishing, Dallas, Texas. The sales representative was Allison Reynolds. 2,335 copies were printed. The price of the book was $52, which included mailing to the students' home address.

Copy and Design

All copy was written by Stone Fort and The Pine Log staff members. The opening, end sheets, division pages, closing and scholars sections were designed by June Parker. All other pages were designed by their respective editors.

Photography

2,335 copies were printed.

Typography

Garamond Premier Pro Regular 11-point was used for all body copy. Calibri Regular 8-point was used for all captions. Helvetica Neue UltraLight 175-point was used for all drop caps. Bodoni ICG regular 85-point was used for all headline fonts. Avant GardeXLight 24-point was used for all subheads. Avant GardeXLight 21-point was used for all pull quotes. Calibri Italic 8-point was used for photo attributes, if multiple photographers shot for the event, otherwise it was in the subhead.

Printing

All pages were printed on 100# enamel paper. Signatures one, two, four, five, seven, 10, 12, and 14 were printed using four-color processing on selected flats, which alternated the color spreads with the black and white spreads. All other pages were printed using only black-ink processing.

Cover

The 2011 Stone Fort cover was designed by June Parker. The pictures and color bars were used to create the design of the cover. The pictures were taken by Thomas Motyka and directed by June Parker. The transparency bars were created in InDesign CS3. The cover was printed in four-color with a lithographic technique. The font used for the cover were Bodoni and Avant Garde.
